Where's Matron?

OR it may be the Sister, or the House Surgeon, or the Porter.

At all hours of the day or night it may be necessary to summon any one of them. Without an efficient internal telephone system, valuable minutes will be lost in finding the required person. Indeed, with such a system it is often unnecessary to summon them at all, for the point in question can be discussed and settled over the telephone. In this way the staff is spared much of their journeying about the hospital, thus obviating the undue fatigue which is so lowering to efficiency.

The "Standard" Private Automatic Telephone system has proved invaluable at a large number of hospitals, including The Cancer Hospital, Fulham Road, London, The Birkenhead General Hospital, and The Derby County Mental Asylum.

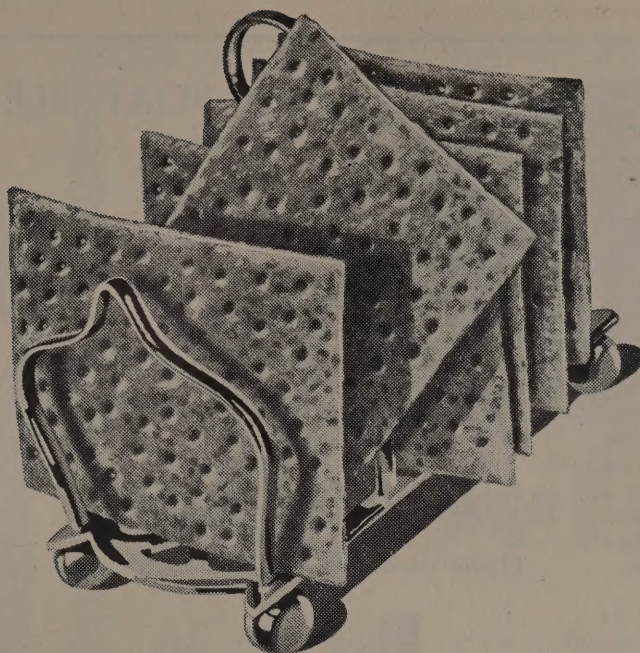

It handles with absolute accuracy calls from all parts of the building and effects the connection within a few seconds.

All conversations are secret and cannot be interrupted. Continuous service throughout the day and night, without the employment of an operator, is assured. Maintenance is extremely simple and inexpensive.

Health Aspects of Vita-Weat

AND SOME INDICATIONS OF ITS USE IN HOSPITALS

In cases of diet regime a readily acceptable and beneficial alternative to ordinary soft bread will be found in Vita-Weat—the Whole-Wheat British crispbread.

For Diabetic Diet.

Vita-Weat is palatable and nourishing and provides a good vehicle for butter. It also serves as a corrective to intestinal inertia.

ANALYSIS.

Carbohydrates	Avg. 6	grms. per section.
Protein	„	.98	„	„
Fat	„	.65	„	„
Calorie Value	„	37 calories	„	„
Number per lb.	„	53

To Prevent Obesity.

The starch grains in Vita-Weat are thoroughly disintegrated. No starch passes unconverted into the body to cause Obesity and Indigestion.

To Counteract Constipation.

The presence of the natural proportion of Wheat Bran in Vita-Weat in a suitable physical condition coupled with its Vitamin B content, provides a natural stimulant to peristaltic action of the intestines. When forming a suitable proportion of the daily diet Vita-Weat effectively counteracts constipation.

To Assist Dental Hygiene.

Its crispness encourages mastication and so promotes a healthy condition of the teeth and gums and a full development of the jaw bones by providing them with proper exercise.

A Hospital Service

The Desoutter Light Metal Limb.

For below knee amputation.

The lower portion from the knee to the ankle joint is pressed out of one piece of Duralumin. The movable foot is mounted on a patent circular rubber cushion, giving a softness of walk hitherto unobtainable and also eliminating noise, wear and frequent adjustment.

"Desoutter" light metal limbs are now being supplied to Hospitals at special prices.

We place our organisation at the service of all hospitals and institutions and invite their co-operation, which will be of great benefit to the patient and give satisfaction to the surgeon.

THE DESOUTTER LIGHT METAL LIMB

"Desoutter" limbs are surgically and mechanically the best in the world, the result of many years of research work and progress. Over 30,000 are in use.

The Government Committee of Inquiry in 1921, unanimously recommended the "Desoutter" limb as the best, and since that date all war cases have been supplied with light metal limbs.

Keepalite
(Pat. No. 313248)

A failure of the lighting in a hospital means more than inconvenience and disorganisation. Life itself would be endangered especially if an operation is in progress. Queen Charlotte's Hospital has installed Keepalite in its new Isolation Block at Hammersmith. Should the main electricity supply fail the Keepalite equipment automatically switches on essential lights which enable the staff to carry on. There are over one hundred buildings where Keepalite is installed. Full details can be obtained from the address below, where a demonstration equipment can be seen.

FOREWORD

By the Hon. Sir ARTHUR STANLEY, G.B.E., C.B., M.V.O.

President of The British Hospitals Association and Chairman of the Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society.

“BURDETT’S HOSPITAL ANNUAL” was first published in 1889; the Preface opens with the words:—

“The object of this Annual is to help all engaged in the administration of the medical charities to compare notes, and by the interchange of experience to promote economy by securing some uniformity in many ways.”

The last issue, under the title “Burdett’s Hospitals and Charities,” was published in 1930, the Annual having then completed its forty-second year.

As much of the statistical information contained in “Burdett’s Hospitals and Charities” was given also in the annual statistical report of King Edward’s Hospital Fund for London and in the annual report on the Voluntary Hospitals in Great Britain (published by the Central Bureau of Hospital Information under the auspices of The British Hospitals Association and the Joint Council of the Order of St. John and the British Red Cross Society), the publishers of “Burdett” felt that there was some overlapping, and approached the Central Bureau of Hospital Information to see whether it would be possible to bring out a joint publication. After considerable negotiations and the appointment of a special Editorial Committee, agreement was reached and it was decided to bring out, under the title of “The Hospitals Year Book,” a publication incorporating statistics concerning all the Voluntary Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland and at the same time retain as much of the directory portion of “Burdett’s Hospitals and Charities” as had been found of most value. The first report issued by the Joint Council appeared on the 15th May, 1920; the new Year Book therefore incorporates the substance of two publications—one that has been running for forty-two years and the other for ten.

The editors of “The Hospitals Year Book” are indebted to King Edward’s Hospital Fund for London for leave to make use of their tables in compiling statistics.

“ The Hospitals Year Book ” will be the first really comprehensive survey of the income, expenditure and volume of work of the British Voluntary Hospital System. I am confident that it will be of great value to hospital authorities throughout the United Kingdom.

Arthur Stanley

June 1931.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to certain special features which may be summarised thus :—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment,
- (b) The extent to which they are utilised,
- (c) The annual cost of maintaining these facilities, and
- (d) The sources and extent of the funds by which they are maintained.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of the groups of hospitals, e.g. Tables 41 to 44, include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year. The figures for these odd periods are omitted from the Tables giving particulars of individual hospitals. It follows, therefore, that a comparatively small difference between the totals in two sets of Tables will be found.

Owing to the difficulties of classification a few hospitals have been omitted from the Statistical Tables but retained in the directory portion.

The Editors desire to express their thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London for the leave, so kindly granted, to use the figures in its Statistical Report on the London hospitals for the purpose of compiling the Tables which appear in the Year Book.

GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WORK AND FINANCES OF THE VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND FOR THE YEAR 1929.

I. SCOPE OF THE SURVEY.

THE survey covers 98·73 per cent. of the total available beds in the Voluntary Hospitals in England, Scotland and Wales and includes for the first time a by no means inconsiderable proportion of those in Northern Ireland and in the Irish Free State.

	Total Voluntary Hospital accommodation.		Reviewed in the Year Book.

II. FINANCE.

Voluntary Hospital Finance for the year 1929 may be summarised thus :—

Received	Spent	Surplus
during the year	on maintenance and development
£ 13,504,968	£ 12,646,947	£ 858,021

The number of hospitals with Credit Balances on their maintenance accounts were

	Number	Percentages
London	90	60%
Provinces	505	76%
Scotland	83	86%
Ireland	17	77%

In order that the figures for 1929 may be compared with those for 1928 the following summary is given (the figures for London and Ireland are excluded as no comparable figures are available).

	1929.	1928.		1929.	1928.
Income available for maintenance	£ 7,446,704	£ 7,293,927	Expenditure on maintenance	£ 6,598,111	£ 6,340,307
Receipts for Capital purposes	2,129,859	2,310,614	Capital Expenditure	2,214,680	1,850,537
			Surplus for the year	763,772	1,413,697
	£ 9,576,563	£ 9,604,541		£ 9,576,563	£ 9,604,541

The actual surpluses in the Provincial and Scottish hospitals during the past six years were as follows :—

1924	£ 1,149,285
1925	1,018,130
1926	250,220
1927	1,015,614
1928	1,413,697
1929	763,772

In London the hospitals showed a surplus of income of £80,693 on a total expenditure on Maintenance Account of £3,626,440. In the Provinces the surplus amounted to £637,799 on an expenditure of £5,579,545 and in Scotland a surplus of £210,794 on an expenditure of £1,018,566. In Ireland, of the hospitals reviewed there was a surplus of £13,740 on an expenditure of £193,160. In other words, for every £100 of expenditure incurred on Maintenance Account there was income available to meet it in the A Group (taking the Hospitals reviewed as a whole)	.	£ 107

„ „ B „	112
„ „ C „	119

There are, however, weak places in the distribution of this, on the whole, satisfactory financial support. Only 51 per cent. of the London Group A hospitals had an excess of income over expenditure on the Maintenance Account and only 59 per cent. of the Group B. The London Group C hospitals were better supported, 78 per cent. having an excess of income over expenditure. In the Provinces, in Scotland and in Ireland, more than three-quarters of the hospitals paid their way. In Scotland the percentage actually reached 88 per cent.

In the Medical School hospitals, 62·5 per cent. had surpluses on the year's maintenance. In the London group the percentage was 50 per cent., in Scotland 100 per cent. and in the Provinces 57 per cent. One year is, however, too short a period to take in considering deficits or surpluses. If the records for the past four years are examined, it will be seen that, with the exception of the London Medical School group, the years of surplus, in almost every hospital, exceed in number and in amount the years of deficit. During that period, taken as a whole, 22 out of 32 hospitals associated with Medical Schools in London, the Provinces and Scotland had surpluses, as follows :—

Hospitals associated with Medical Schools.						No. of Hospitals having
						Surpluses.	Deficits.
London	5	7
Provinces	12	2
Scotland	5	1

Among the larger non-Medical School Hospitals the record is much better. 50 out of 68 had surpluses during 1929 and out of 240 balances during the four-year period 183 were surpluses. Only two of the 68 hospitals have adverse balances for all of the four years.

The finances of the Special Hospitals both in London and in the Provinces appear to be better than those of the General. Only one group, viz. the Ear, Nose and Throat in London, has a deficit.

It is in the larger hospitals, and especially in London, that greater support is needed to meet the annual expenditure. It is unfortunate that research and progress in the science and art of Medicine (as is well known to those who have to collect money) makes so much less appeal to the general public than the relief of actual suffering. No small portion of the extra costliness of the great National Medical School Hospitals is due to the obligation their position entails on them to investigate and to make trial of anything that might lead to the prevention and cure of sickness and disease. The following three tables give a concise view of Voluntary Hospital Income and Expenditure for 1929.

* The cost of out-patient work is included in these figures.

The almost perfect regularity of the income and expenditure columns suggests that financially the grouping followed in the survey is not altogether arbitrary. In the surplus column (with the exception of the Irish Hospitals, of which only a small proportion of the total is included) the figures show that the financial strain is most severely felt in the large hospitals.

The figures of expenditure per available bed are interesting. Costs rise as the Metropolis is approached. Differences in locality also seem to influence the extent to which the various sources of support are relied upon. For example, proportionately much more is raised in London from patients' payments than in either the Provinces or in Scotland.

SOURCES OF INCOME.

It is not possible to institute any very close comparison between the London and the Provincial hospitals so far as the sources of income are concerned. It is, however, possible to compare the A, B, and C Groups in either London or the Provinces. In London the striking feature in making this comparison is that it is only in their endowments and in their extraordinary income that the Group A hospitals enjoy any great advantage over the Group B or Group C. In these two items they derive per available bed £34.42 more than the Group B and £48.39 more than the Group C. In the other sources of income the amounts raised by each group are very similar. In the English Provincial Hospitals there was a slight increase in all sources of support except in that of extraordinary income. Here there was a drop in each group large enough to cause a decrease in the total income per available bed, of £2.31. In Scotland there were very slight drops in 5 out of the 9 sources of income. There was, however, an increase in extraordinary income of £5.32, resulting in an increase in the total income per available bed of £3.09.

The number of hospitals in Ireland reviewed is too small yet to justify any detailed observations.

The growth of invested funds is really remarkable. In the Provinces it averages £500,000 and in Scotland over £300,000 a year.

In the Provinces the total amount received in legacies during 1929 was rather less than in the previous year, but up to the average of the years 1925 to 1929. In Scotland there was a marked increase—over £100,000 above the average. Of the total £401,370, an unusually large proportion was earmarked. Usually free legacies bear to earmarked the proportion of 4 to 1 or 5 to 1. In Scotland in 1929 the proportion was approximately 2 to 1.

The amount derived from National Health Insurance has slightly increased. It is still totally inadequate. Strenuous efforts are being made by the hospitals to obtain a better recognition of their claims to share in the quinquennial surpluses of the Approved Societies.

EXPENDITURE.

“Provisions,” “Surgery and Dispensary,” “Domestic” and “Salaries and Wages” are generally regarded as the controllable portions of the cost of maintaining a hospital and it is upon the amounts spent on these items that comparisons are generally made, but the terms used, “Provisions,” etc., are, in their contents, so uncertain as to make their use as a basis upon which to compare institution with institution very unreliable.

There is possibly less danger in making certain general observations regarding large groups or even large areas. The London Hospitals, for example, are undoubtedly more costly to maintain than the Provincial, while the Provincial are undoubtedly more costly than the Scottish. The causes are complicated: hours, rates of pay, rates, standards, customs, all play a part, but although in individual cases improvement and economies may be possible, these possibilities exist just as much in the North as in the South, in the Provinces as in the Metropolis, and it must not be concluded that because one hospital spends much less upon any of the four items than another it is either better managed, more economical or providing better value for money.

That comparisons are not possible is unfortunate, and doubly so now that the Municipal Hospital is taking its place in the General Health Scheme. The costs of these institutions will be the subject of the closest investigation and it is most desirable that comparisons, when made, as they are sure to be made, indeed as they are being made now, should be based upon the fullest possible knowledge of all the facts.

The advent of the Municipal Hospital is in many respects a very good thing indeed, for it will provide a stimulus to the Voluntary Hospitals to realise the value, from an administrative point of view, of setting out the records of their work and expenditure in such a way as to provide accurate bases for comparison. The Voluntary Hospitals have never had to face any very serious criticism, indeed the data upon which to found serious criticism has not been available. Now they will have to face the organised observation of hospitals under the control of a possibly sympathetic, but certainly a critical authority.

Table III above gives the relative costliness of the hospitals in London, the Provinces and in Scotland. On the average it costs in London 84 per cent. more than in Scotland and 61 per cent. more than in the Provinces to maintain a hospital bed. It must not, however, be overlooked, that individual hospitals in London, the Provinces and in Scotland vary very widely indeed from this average, as will be seen from the following figures of expenditure per occupied bed of the hospitals associated with Medical Schools.

	Provisions.		Surgery and Dispensary.		Domestic.		Salaries and Wages.
	Highest.	Lowest.	Highest.	Lowest.	Highest.	Lowest.	Highest.	Lowest.
London	£ 53	£ 32	£ 56	£ 29	£ 75	£ 36	£ 164	£ 76
Provinces	41	25	40	17	48	23	89	46
Scotland	33	22	21	13	27	15	58	31

General Hospitals containing less than 125 beds and Special Hospitals arranged alphabetically are shown in a series of tables which give the number of beds, the number of In-patients and of Out-patients, and the amount received for, and spent on, maintenance. No doubt experience will suggest additions, alterations or improvements in these tables. The aim has been to provide a basis upon which to build. Tables are also given for the first time of the average weekly cost of each In-patient under the various headings into which expenditure is divided. These will be useful to administrators in locating items, investigation into the cost of which might prove remunerative.

The separation of Out-patient from In-patient costs has been for long required by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London in the accounts of all hospitals to which grants are made. This excellent practice is also followed by a considerable number of Provincial Hospitals and it has been possible to provide a series of tables showing the figures of more than 50 institutions.

Most of the cost of an Out-patient lies in "Surgery & Dispensary" (that is largely Drugs, etc.) and "Salaries & Wages." The cost of the former is a point not without importance in the efforts which are being made to secure more support from the Approved Societies. An Out-patient may be calculated to cost approximately 6s. 8d. The total cost, therefore, of the Out-patient service lies somewhere between £1,500,000 and £2,000,000. Efforts to secure more support from those who are the chief beneficiaries and to restrict Out-patient Departments to those who really require skilled advice would result in very material relief to the finances of the Voluntary Hospitals.

One of the most useful compilations in "Burdett's Hospitals and Charities" some years ago was a table giving very full details of nursing staffs, their cost, etc. It has not been possible in this first edition of the Year Book to reintroduce this table in its complete form, but tables giving the more important facts and covering a wide area will be found in the body of the Year Book. These tables also give particulars of the Medical and Surgical Staffs of the Hospitals.

A certain number of tables showing particulars of work and staff in Municipal and Public Assistance Hospitals are also given. Gratitude is due to those who have so kindly supplied information. It is felt that it will be a convenience to those engaged in the institutional treatment of the sick to have in one volume as comprehensive details of both Voluntary and Municipal Hospitals as possible.

III. PATIENTS TREATED DURING 1929.

Total	929	69,202	1,080,396	5,224,774	6,305,170

The figures for the hospitals in the Provinces and Scotland compared with those of the previous year show the following increases :—

Available beds	1,508 increase
New In-patients	36,204 ..
New Out-patients	119,723 ..

The normal rate of increase in the Voluntary System is about 1,500 beds, 40,000 In-patients and 150,000 Out-patients.

The larger General Hospitals in England and Scotland (those with 125 beds or more) number 106. These may be divided into two main groups, 32 with and 74 without Medical Schools attached. The largest Medical-School Hospital has 1,006 beds, the smallest 190. The largest non-Medical-School Hospital has 413 beds.

There is really very little variation in the number of patients passing through each bed during the year, whether in London or in the Provinces, whether in the Medical or in the non-Medical-School Hospitals. The average occupation of the majority exceeds 80 per cent. and in many approaches 100 per cent.; the patients stay in, on an average, less than 3 weeks, so that some 17 to 19 pass through each bed each year. The actual number of beds devoted to surgical work is not available. It may be estimated, however, that something approaching 20 operations per surgical bed are performed each year.

An interesting and important figure, and one that has only recently been made available, is the proportion of short-stay cases, i.e., patients discharged within 3 days of their admission. In some of the London Hospitals as many as one-fifth are short-stay patients. All the Provincial Hospitals do not yet give this figure; but from such data as are available the proportion is evidently very considerable. In one large Provincial Hospital it exceeds one-third of the total admissions. Stress is laid upon the importance of this figure. Without it those who may be charged with the duty of negotiating with outside bodies on behalf of the Voluntary Hospitals on such matters as, e.g., flat rates, etc., which have to be based upon averages may be at a very distinct disadvantage.

In London, in the Provinces and in Scotland there are approximately 1,000,000 In-patients treated in the year, divided thus: London 23 per cent., the Provinces 63 per cent. and Scotland 14 per cent. Of these In-patients, again, 67 per cent. are treated in the Group A hospitals, which contain, approximately 65 per cent. of the beds. The In-patient work is not, therefore, ill distributed.

The Out-patient work is divided in rather different proportion. Approximately 5,000,000 Out-patients are treated in the year. 36 per cent. in London, 53 per cent. in the Provinces and 11 per cent. in Scotland. Of these 5,000,000 patients, 77 per cent. are treated in the Group A hospitals. More than this, and the matter is one of some importance at the present time, 34 per cent. of the 5,000,000 are treated in the 32 Medical-School Hospitals. That is, more than one-third of the total Out-patient work of the Voluntary Hospitals is concentrated in 32 institutions.

There are not a few who have long felt that the Out-patient Department is the weak spot in the Voluntary System. Hospitals have endeavoured to meet every call made upon them. They have regarded this as their first duty. The result has been overcrowding, with long hours of waiting as its inevitable accompaniment and the consequent discomfort of many who are really ill. The problem, however, is not insoluble. All that is required is its careful consideration by those who have intimate knowledge of the facts; medical staffs, general practitioners, out-patient sisters, lay officials, and so on.

The British Medical Association has already considered the matter from certain aspects and has issued a report which deserves most careful consideration. It has also been suggested that The British Hospitals Association might undertake the task of calling into conference doctors and laymen in order to arrive at the solution of the problem in which most of the difficulties would disappear if they were faced in a non-controversial spirit.

It is certainly time to examine carefully the objections that are raised whenever the problem of the Hospital Out-patient Department is mentioned. No one attempts to apply the doctrine of the "Ever-open door" to the In-patient Department. Except in the case of emergencies, admission to the ward is definitely limited within perfectly well-known boundaries; why not then an equal limitation of admission to the Out-patient Department?

Again, there is the argument that restriction would affect seriously the education of the student. It is not easy for those who have adequate acquaintance with the congested condition of the Out-patient Departments in not a few of the Voluntary Hospitals to appreciate the cogency of this objection. Or again, it is sometimes contended that restriction would mean that many would be deprived of skilled, not necessarily specialist, attention which they could not get outside. In the first place, no health scheme can be based on the assumption that a portion of the personnel lack the necessary qualifications for their work, and secondly an argument of this kind, if valid at all, would be as valid against limitation of admission to the wards.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACT, 1930.

For some years past concern has been felt regarding the number of Road Accidents which find their way into the Voluntary Hospitals. It is the proud boast of the Voluntary Hospitals that their doors stand always open and that to save life or limb room must be found in some way or other. At the same time, to carry on this work requires money. Some of those who are admitted pay generously, some make no payment though they could well afford to do so, others are too poor to pay anything at all.

Many suggestions have been put forward as to how the hospitals should be remunerated for the work they do in this connection.

As long ago as 1924 several of the Regional Committees of The British Hospitals Association drew attention to the large and increasing number of accidents needing hospital treatment, and the Council of the Association was urged to take the matter up with representatives of Insurance Companies.

The question was felt to be intimately connected with other Traffic Problems resulting directly from the extension of the Motor Industry. There was, however, no machinery in compensation cases to enable hospitals to reap any financial benefit from the services rendered to injured people.

To introduce any certain means by which hospitals could first be allowed a portion of the compensation awarded and then secured in the certainty of its payment involved legislation.

Each year the Council of the Association was urged to find some solution which would provide adequate support to enable the hospitals to carry out their work, and yet not conflict with their voluntary character.

At Portsmouth, at the Annual Conference of the Association in 1926, Sir John Paget dealt with the position from the Hospital point of view, and in the following year at Norwich, Mr. W. J. Jenkins read a paper on the subject from the Insurance point of view. At the time it was felt that the large hospitals in the great cities were not particularly moved by the agitation in connection with motor accidents. It was chiefly the smaller hospitals in outlying districts which were concerned. Their beds were occupied by strangers to the district which the hospital served, and local supporters were sometimes excluded from beds which really had been provided for them.

The worst trouble arose from the fact that these stranger patients did not contribute as might reasonably be expected towards their costs; and the Voluntary Hospitals had no legal power to make them pay.

Various proposals were advocated; among the number, compulsory insurance of all motor vehicles, voluntary insurance by a special policy, a system of hospital subscriber's badges, and so on.

In this respect the Poor Law Hospitals had a distinct advantage over the Voluntary Hospitals because each case admitted to one of those Institutions was assessed for treatment and maintenance purposes on an income basis. But the Voluntary Hospitals were afraid of the risk of interfering with the Voluntary principle and the danger of making arrangements more or less on a commercial basis. Apart from questions of general principle difficult questions of detail arose, as, for example, payment for professional services.

When an accident case was admitted to a paying ward at the wish of the patient the position was different, for a contract was at once entered into; but in the case of a patient going into a general ward any obligation to pay was of a moral character.

There were, however, objections to every suggestion made, and it was not until the Road Traffic Bill introduced a compulsory Third-Party Insurance Section that any definite opportunity presented itself to put forward the claims of the hospitals.

The hospitals had not felt themselves justified in urging insurance in connection with motor cars, but they naturally took the view that if compulsory insurance were introduced by the Government then it was clearly their duty to see that the claims of the hospitals were not altogether overlooked.

It was realised at the outset that compulsory third-party insurance could only cover a small portion of the cases treated in hospital—the most favourable estimate did not exceed 10 per cent.—but that was no reason why this money, whatever its amount, should be lost altogether.

There were many hospital sympathisers who took the view that the legal difficulties in drafting a satisfactory and logical hospital Clause were insuperable. However, sympathy for the hospitals was so great that the following was agreed to by both Houses of Parliament.

“Where any payment is made by an authorised insurer under a policy issued under this Part of this Act or by the owner of a vehicle in relation to the share of which a security under this Part of this Act is in force, or has made a deposit under this Part of this Act, in respect of the death of or bodily injury to any person arising out of the use of a motor vehicle on a road and the person who has so died or been bodily injured has to the knowledge of the authorised insurer or such owner received treatment in a Hospital in respect of the fatal or other bodily injury so arising, there shall also be paid by the authorised insurer or such owner to such Hospital the expenses reasonably incurred by the Hospital in affording such treatment to an amount not exceeding twenty-five pounds for each person so treated.

“For the purposes of this subsection the expression ‘Hospital’ means an institution which provides medical or surgical treatment for in-patients and the expression ‘expenses reasonably incurred’ means in relation to a person who receives treatment in a Hospital an amount for each day such person is maintained in such Hospital representing the average daily cost per patient of the maintenance of the Hospital and the staff thereof and the maintenance and treatment of the patients therein: Provided that the subsection shall not apply to any case where a charge has been made by the Hospital in respect of such treatment.” (Clause 36, subsection (2).)

Experience has shown not only that the estimate of 10 per cent. is approximately accurate, but that there are undoubted difficulties in working the section satisfactorily. It is clear that even if negotiations between the hospitals and the insurance companies result in a satisfactory working arrangement there is still great need of some supplementary method which will provide adequate remuneration for this side of hospital work. It is difficult to see how the principle of insurance can be extended to cover those victims of motor traffic who are injured as a result of either their own negligence or pure accident. It is a little unfortunate that the Treasury should have ruled out of consideration the suggestion that there should be some addition to the motor licence, on the ground that the machinery of Government could not be used to collect money for a private purpose of such a character. A comparatively small addition would produce a very considerable sum. The suggestion was at any rate worthy of much more consideration than it received.

There is widespread ignorance regarding the scope of the Hospital Clause in the Act, and the following are some of the points to which the attention of those responsible for its working should be directed:—

1. It is limited by the Act itself to third-party insurance only.

2. It was introduced for the benefit of those hospitals making no charge to their patients. It expressly states that it does not apply to any case where a charge has been made by the hospital in respect of treatment. It is only intended to apply to cases where the hospital is not in a position to, or prefers not to, make a charge.

Such rights as a hospital previously possessed to claim from a patient, if it thought desirable, are undisturbed by the Act.

The present position, therefore, appears to be that a hospital can if it chooses either:—

- (a) Press for the payment of its charges by the patient in the same way as it did before the Act was passed, or

- (b) Claim from the insurance company concerned, under the Act.

The main difference between the two methods appears to be that under

- (a) The hospital would claim the full amount of its charges (including if it so wishes a sum in recognition of the services of the medical attendant) from the patient. There are instances where such claims have been allowed by the courts.

and under

- (b) The hospital would make no claim against the patient but would claim direct from the insurance company an amount based upon the average daily cost per patient in the hospital.

3. Payment to a hospital is contingent on a payment by the insurance company to the injured person.

4. So called "ex gratia" payments made by insurance companies constitute payments made under the Act as will be seen from the opening paragraph of the section, "Where any payment is made by an authorised insurer under a policy issued under this part of this Act."

5. It is stated that in the case of Municipal Hospitals relevant information regarding accidents, e.g. the name of the company issuing the policy, is given to the hospitals as a matter of course by the Police. Such an arrangement would prove advantageous to the Voluntary Hospitals and there should be no difficulty in bringing it about. One of the real difficulties in connection with the work of the section is the impossibility of finding within a reasonable length of time whether the patient falls under the section or not. The acceptance of money from the patient or his friends while in hospital may jeopardise anything due under the Act. Experience will provide the best way of meeting this difficulty.

6. Another difficulty arises in the case of an injured person who may be unable, personally, or who may lack representatives, to present a legitimate claim for compensation. There appears to be need for some machinery to ensure that such claims are not overlooked through ignorance or inability on the part of the injured.

REMISSION OF DUTY ON LEGACIES TO HOSPITALS.

THE question of legacy duty on legacies to hospitals is not a new one, and was fully considered by the Voluntary Hospitals Committee which was appointed by the Minister of Health on the 25th January, 1921, to consider the financial position of the Voluntary Hospitals and to make recommendations as to any action which should be taken to assist them.

That Committee, which was presided over by the late Viscount Cave, and on which the Marquess of Linlithgow, Sir Clarendon Hyde, the late Mr. Vernon Hartshorn, and Mr. R. C. Norman sat, heard evidence, not only from the Voluntary Hospitals, but also from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, the British Medical Association and from officers of the Ministry of Health and the London County Council, and in their Report dated 31st May, 1921 (Command paper No. 1335) the Committee unanimously made the following (among other) recommendation :—

"that legacy and succession duty on testamentary gifts to hospitals be remitted."

This recommendation has not been carried in effect, and although the plea of the hospitals has been received with sympathy, their request has been refused by successive Governments on the pretext of expense and impracticability. The objection of impracticability has no real foundation. It rests upon the fiction that there is no definition of a hospital which would enable the Revenue Authorities to determine whether or not legacies to particular institutions should be paid free of duty. There need be no difficulty in providing a definition. When the Government made a special grant of £500,000 in 1921 in aid of the Voluntary Hospitals the distribution of the grant presented no difficulty.

The arguments in favour of the remission of legacy duty on legacies to the Voluntary Hospitals may be summed up as follows :—

1. That the remission of legacy duty would be a fair, simple and practicable method of affording the Voluntary Hospitals a measure of assistance while preserving their voluntary character.
2. That the remission of legacy duty would be an act of justice, for in the words of the Voluntary Hospitals Committee "there appears to be no good reason why the State should intercept at the source, one-tenth of all sums bequeathed for the benefit of the sick."

There is little that can be said in support of a duty that depletes this source of hospital income, and it is greatly to be hoped that the efforts which are to be put forward to get the duty abolished may be successful.

MENTAL TREATMENT ACT, 1930.

THE Mental Treatment Act, which came into operation on the 1st January, 1931, made some fundamental changes in the law relating to the treatment of mental disorders; those which directly affect the Voluntary Hospitals have been briefly summarised as follows :—

1. Voluntary Patients.

- (a) Under section 1 (1) any person, on making written application to the person in charge, may be received and treated as a voluntary patient at any hospital approved by the Board of Control.
- (b) Under section 6 (2) a Local Authority is empowered, subject to the approval of the Board of Control, to make contracts for the reception and treatment of rate-aided voluntary patients in any hospital approved by the Board of Control.

2. Temporary Patients.

- (a) Under section 5 (1) a person “ who is suffering from mental illness and is likely to benefit by temporary treatment, but is for the time being incapable of expressing himself as willing or unwilling to receive such treatment,” may be received as a temporary patient in any hospital approved by the Board of Control. Such reception would follow upon an application made by a relative or friend and supported by two medical recommendations as provided in the section. These patients are not certified as persons of unsound mind; but they may be detained under treatment for a period of not exceeding six months, or, if that is extended by the Board of Control, for a period not exceeding twelve months.
- (b) Under section 6 (1), a Local Authority is empowered, subject to the approval of the Board of Control, to contract for the reception of rate-aided temporary patients in any hospital approved by the Board.

3. Out-patient Clinics.

By section 6 (3) (a), a Local Authority is empowered to make arrangements for the treatment as out-patients of persons suffering from mental illness. This provision enables a Local Authority to make arrangements with a Voluntary Hospital for the establishment of such clinic at the hospital.

The willingness of the Voluntary Hospitals to participate in the treatment of mental illness has been shown for some years past by the establishment of Out-patient Clinics. For example, the report of one of the large provincial Voluntary Hospitals for the year 1928 states :

“ This Out-patient Department (Mental Clinic) continues to receive a considerable number of cases from general practitioners for an opinion. Patients are usually kept under treatment unless their admission to a Mental Hospital is advised. By this means a considerable number are saved confinement in a Mental Hospital. The addition of the Medical Officers of the Mental Hospital to the staff of the department, thus transforming it into a Clinic, has been of great service to it. Not only do they treat their own convalescent cases from the Mental Hospital, but their advice and help in the treatment of other patients and the cases in the wards are of great service to the Clinic.

“ This branch of the Hospital’s work will grow in usefulness and importance, and if in the future a few beds in special wards could be assigned to it, its usefulness would be greatly increased.”

The following figures from another Mental Clinic in the provinces are of interest.

Report of the Mental Clinic.

Other Patients attending for the first time	38	45	83
Average No. attending each day	5.65	5.09	10.74

The nature of the new cases :—						Male.	Female.	Total.
Deficiency in Mental Development	7	6	13
Organic Diseases of the Nervous System	7	3	10
Functional Psychosis	7	20	27
Psychoneuroses and Neurosis	17	16	33
						38	45	83

Attention may also be directed to Memorandum No. 33 in this volume, which gives particulars of Mental Clinics at Voluntary Hospitals.

The difficulty, largely financial, lies in the provision of beds for in-patients. To what extent this can be overcome time only can prove. The following weighty expression of opinion by the Chairman of the Board of Control deserves the greatest possible consideration by those responsible for the management of the large Voluntary Hospitals.

“The nature and extent of their (the hospitals) participation may have a profound effect upon the attitude of the public towards mental illness generally and upon progress in the treatment of mental illness, particularly having regard to the possibilities now opened up in connection with the teaching of psychological medicine in the teaching hospitals.”

With regard to the cost of building, it will be observed that the high figures of £1,000 per bed or over occur during 1920 to 1923. With regard to the cost of equipment per bed, the figures given are based upon the actual money paid. In some cases equipment hospital is the figure originally suggested by Dr. Goldwater in America some years ago, namely 10% of the cost of building. To this

IN HOSPITAL WARDS.

BY LARGE GENERAL HOSPITALS.

Time wards ready for visiting by resident medical staff.	Time honorary medical staff usually visit wards.	Time operation list usually commenced.	What additional staff, if any, has been, or would be found necessary, to avoid the disturbance of patients before 7 a.m.	Opinion with regard to the wisdom of avoiding disturbance of patients before 7 a.m.
a.m. 10.0	a.m. 11.0	a.m. 11.0	1 per ward.	No hardship in present arrangement. Patients very ill should receive special consideration.
8.45	9.0	9.0	1 per ward.	Alteration not necessary.
8.45	9.15	9.15		Alteration would not allow sufficient time before visits of the medical staff.
9.0	9.0	9.0	Not considered.	Unwise to avoid disturbance before 7 a.m.
9.0	9.0	9.0	Would have to be considerably increased.
9.0	10.0	9.0	At least one to every ward.	A good deal for and against, even from the patients' point of view.
9.0	9.0	9.15	None, but an alteration of time of visits of Medical staffs and operations.	Unnecessary here. Most patients used to 6 a.m. breakfast.
9.0	11.0	11.30	Double?	Inadvisable. Ward work takes all the time. Patients accustomed to early rising.
9.0	10.0	10.0	Difficult to estimate.	Do not think it necessary.
9.30	9.30	9.15		Difficult to vary so long as visiting staff carry out their hospital duties in the morning. Present arrangement involves very little inconvenience to patients.
9.0	9.15	9.15	1 or 2 extra in each ward.	Under consideration.
9.0	9.0	9.30	1 or more nurses, also later visits by Medical staffs.	Patients may not appreciate it as they settle down at 8 p.m.
9.30	after-noon	1 p.m.	None.	A most excellent idea.
9.30	10.30	a.m. 10.30	1 nurse for each ward.	Not advisable.
10.0	11.0	10.0		Patients accustomed to early rising. Much prefer to be washed before breakfast.
9.0	9.0	9.0	Doubled to perform 4 hours' work in 2 hours.	Whole question bound up with time M.O.'s rounds are made and operations performed. Patients not unaccustomed to early rising.
9.30	10.0	10.0	At least 2 extra in each ward.	Majority of patients used to early rising. Moreover they are early to sleep at night and wakeful at an early hour.
9.0	9.0	9.0		Patients usually awake and hungry. Wards could not be got ready by 9 a.m.
9.30	10.0	10.0	Patients were disturbed at 5.15. Altered recently to 6.15 without extra staff.	Desirable and can be brought about without much difficulty if Medical Staffs adjust their times.
9.30	10.0	9.15	None.	Not considered necessary. Patients acutely ill only too glad to have early attention. Others have slept from 8 p.m.
10.0	10.0	9.0	2 in small and 4 in large wards till 10 a.m.	Under present arrangements patients can have 9 to 10 hours' sleep.
9.30	11.0	morning	1 for each ward.	Difficult as I suppose patients could not be expected to have breakfast unwashed.

a.m. 9.30 9.30	a.m. 9.30 morning	a.m. 10.30 9.0	Rearrangement of staff. An extra maid in main kitchen.	An excellent scheme. Patients would benefit. "I agree."
9.0	10.0	10.0	Cannot say.	Not practicable. Would not be of such benefit as to warrant change of organisation.
10.0	10.0	10.0	None.	Found to work well with rearrangement of duties between day and night nurses.
9.0	after-noon	9.30	None.	When wards closed down at 8 p.m., 6 a.m. is not too early to disturb patients.
10.0	1.30 p.m.	9.0	8 night nurses.	Greater number of patients used to waking early. Private patients not disturbed before 7 a.m. as a rule.
9.30	a.m. 11.0	9.30	15.	Definitely in favour. Adoption presents many difficulties especially owing to inconvenient wards.
9.30	10.0	3.30 p.m.	6.	It would be wise in the interests of the patients.
9.45	10.0	any time a.m.	Recently changed from 5 a.m. No additional staff.	We find 6 a.m. not too early, many being awake at that hour. Patients very ill are not disturbed if sleeping.
9.0	10.0	10.0	6.	An improvement on present conditions provided the patients are washed before breakfast.
9.0	9.0	9.0	1 per ward.	So long as patients get proper amount of sleep the actual hour of waking not of great importance.
9.30	10.0	10.30	Probably one.	The patients would greatly appreciate the alteration if it could be made.
9.30	9.30	9.30	2 nurses for 2 hours.	The idea does not justify the reorganisation and increase of expenditure.
9.0	9.30	9.30		Patients would be more excited and disturbed by the rush that would be necessary to get them ready than they are now.
8.30	8.30	9.0	Not considered.	Quite good, but impossible in view of the early visits of the honorary staff and operations.
9.0 10.0	morning 9.0	10.0 9.0	Unknown.	Complete rearrangement of duties and hours of honorary staffs' visits would be essential. No complaints received. Alteration considered unnecessary.
9.0	12.0	10.30	Considerable. It might be possible to adopt 6 o/c with 1 or 2 additions.	Very good—if it could be worked economically.
9.0	10.30	10.30*	Should have to make same staff do.	Suggests change from 5 a.m. to 6 a.m.
9.0	9.30	9.0	3.	Our time suits our patients. They are accustomed to having breakfast at 6 a.m.
9.45	10.30	10.30		Recently changed from 5.30 to 6.30. Patients should be allowed to sleep as long as possible.
10.0	10.0	10.0	None.	We find 6.30 quite satisfactory.
9.30	10.0	11.0	Nil.	*7.0 applies to patients confined to bed. Those who are allowed to get up are roused at 6.15.
9.0	9.0	9.0	One each ward.	This arrangement works well.
				Not considered advisable in the interests of the patients.
				Much in favour of alteration if satisfactory to the honorary medical staff.

The following observations of a general character result from an examination of the figures.

1. That the day nurses in the majority of cases come on duty at 7 a.m.
2. That the night nurses in the majority of cases go off duty from 8 to 8.30 a.m.
3. That the time on duty of the night staff overlaps the time on duty of the day staff in the majority of cases from 1 to 1½ hours.
4. Work begins in the wards in 45 instances before 6 o'clock and in 18 instances at 6 o'clock or later.
5. The interval between the beginning of work and breakfast varies from 0 to 2½ hours. The great majority of hospitals allow from 30 to 60 minutes.

Time wards ready for visiting by resident medical staff.	Time honorary medical staff usually visit wards.	Time operation list usually commenced. a.m. 9.0	a.m. 9.0	a.m. 9.0		Considering change from 5 a.m. to 6 a.m. If medical staff will co-operate additional staff may not be necessary.
10.0	10.0	10.0	Four.	Patients settled by 8.30 p.m. are quite prepared for waking at 5 a.m.
9.0	any time	8.0	One each ward.	I do not see how this rule can be universally applied as the hours of the honorary medical staffs vary in every hospital.
9.45	Various	10.0	2 per ward.	Changed last year from 5 a.m. to 6 a.m. without any extra staff. The change was much appreciated. Further alteration considered unnecessary as most patients are awake at 6 a.m.
9.0	10.0	9.0	One each ward.	Operations would have to commence much later.
9.30	any time	any time	One each ward ?	A wise suggestion, but fear it would cause ward routine work to congest rather.
10.0	any time	11.30
9.0	9.0	9.30		Quite unnecessary.
10.0	any time	8.0	Two each ward.	Does not think there would be any advantage in making the change.
9.0	9.0	any time	12.	The only argument against the suggestion is expense.
9.30	any time	10.0		Patients are awake before 7 a.m. and sick people need attention before that hour.
9.30	3.0 p.m.	1.30 p.m.	*	*A 3-shift system would be necessary and would increase cost to an enormous extent.
9.30	a.m. 10.30	a.m. 10.0	Doubtful.	Very acceptable from the patients' standpoint.
9.30	10.0	10.0	4 additional nurses were engaged.	Agree with the proposal.
9.0	11.0	10.0		The scheme is of great benefit to the patients and in no way detrimental to nursing arrangements.
9.45	11.0	11.0	None.	New hospital to be opened in May when new arrangements will be made.
9.30	9.30	2.0 p.m.	10.	Propose to wake patients at 6.15 and serve breakfast at 7, i.e. one hour later in each case.
				Present arrangement satisfactory. Breakfast at 7.30 would cause too long an interval since supper, which is at 7 p.m.

6. The interval between the beginning of work in a ward and the visits of the Honorary Medical Staff varies in those hospitals in which the Hon. Staff visit in the morning from 3 to 6½ hours. The majority allow 4 to 5 hours.
7. With regard to the column showing the extra staff required, the various opinions expressed reflect the difficulty involved in estimating the effect on staff whenever a load factor is increased sharply and for a limited period.

RUBBER FLOORING.

RUBBER Flooring is used in three chief types, which may be described as follows :—

1. Rubber flooring in long lengths (in plain or marbled colours). This generally consists of rolls 50' to 100' long, $\frac{1}{8}$ " to $\frac{3}{16}$ " in thickness and 3' or 4' wide.
2. Inlaid flooring, that is a tiled or any other design which is made up on a backing, ready to lay in sheet form.
3. Separate tiles (a) with the edges cut straight, or (b) with the edges moulded. (The latter are generally of the interlocking variety.) The thickness varies from $\frac{3}{16}$ " to $\frac{3}{8}$ " according to requirements.

Types number one and three appear to be those most commonly used in hospitals.

The following is an analysis of the reports and opinions of 97 hospital administrators having experience of the use of Rubber Flooring in hospitals.

The 97 hospitals may be grouped as follows :—

Hospitals having 100 or more beds	32
" " from 30 to 99 beds	30
" " less than 30 beds	35

The length of experience of those furnishing information varies from 16 years down to one year or less, but in the large majority of cases it exceeds four years.

In only 33 out of the 97 reports received is it stated in which form the rubber is laid, namely, rolls, 21; tiles, 12.

Particulars of the sub-flooring were given in only fourteen cases, namely :—

Cement screeded concrete	4
Concrete	2
Rock asphalt	1
Stone	1
Wood	6

Only 21 of the reports state the thickness of rubber used, namely :—

$\frac{1}{8}$ "	5
$\frac{3}{16}$ "	6
$\frac{3}{8}$ "	3
$\frac{1}{4}$ "	6
$\frac{1}{2}$ "	1

Sixty-two out of the 97 reports received contained opinions definitely favourable to the use of Rubber Flooring in hospitals, and no criticisms whatever.

The opinions in the remaining 35 reports are given in detail :—

Length of Experience.	Opinion.
8 years	Tends to curl on recently laid concrete. Lighter colours show dirt.
—	Was used years ago but was found unsatisfactory. Tended to crease under heavy traffic.
5 "	Experience gained would not lead to its general adoption.
4 "	Difficult to keep clean. Very costly. Not found satisfactory.
4 "	On boarded floor was perpetually buckling. Same experience on staircase. Had to be replaced. Found same costly. (The thickness of rubber in this case was $\frac{3}{16}$ ".)
3½ "	Not satisfactory owing to thin quality used. Cost is excessive.
5 "	Extremely difficult to keep clean. Very expensive.
3 "	Its only defect is that it marks very quickly after being washed.
6 "	Moisture rises through concrete and the rubber solution becomes ineffective. Bed castors cause "creep" and the moisture "ballooning" in places. Our position is abnormal.

Length of Experience.

Opinion.

5 years	Wears very well. Staff say it draws their feet.
—	Easily stained.
4 „	We found it impossible to get it to stick to the concrete.
—	Plain colours do not look nice after washing.
5 „	Not satisfactory when laid on cement. We had to have it taken up. Perfectly satisfactory on boarded passages.
—	Was tried in the kitchen but abandoned because damp got underneath it.
5 „	Essential that where laid direct on cement the latter should be “suspended.” On wood floors rubber is quite satisfactory.
—	Not liked on account of its showing dirt so badly.
—	We once had it in our operating theatre but at request of surgeons had it removed.
1 „	Expensive.
—	It was a failure—(it was laid in corridors only).
5 „	Tendency to bulge. No suitable substance to stick it to a stone floor. Costly.
8 „	No good.
—	It wore very badly. A thicker quality might have been more satisfactory.
6 „	Wears well, but difficult to keep straight when heavy machines moved.
7 „	Has not given satisfaction. Under heavy pressure soon wears into holes. Any surplus water after washing easily stains it.
3 „	Needs cleaning several times a day.
8 „	Variation of temperature seems to move it. Perhaps it would be better if laid in smaller pieces. Best non-tiring floor to stand on.
3 „	Not satisfactory. Had to be taken up. Traffic made it stretch and continual scrubbing perished the rubber.
2 „	Most satisfactory. Light grey rather liable to show stains. Marbled grey selected for our new ward.
—	Difficult to keep clean.
7 „	Eminently suitable. Requires frequent washing.
2 „	Excellent but cost very high.
2 „	Difficult to keep clean, otherwise very satisfactory.
3 „	In view of expense we chose $\frac{1}{8}$ ” thickness for wards—a mistake. Everywhere else it is $\frac{1}{4}$ ” thick and quite satisfactory. Not easy to keep clean.
—	Wholly unsuitable on wooden floors in Operating Theatre and Casualty room. It has been taken out on account of water getting under.

The majority of the adverse opinions can be grouped under the headings :—

- (a) Failures, due to the use of rubber of an insufficient thickness.
- (b) Difficulty in getting rubber to stick satisfactorily to sub-floors.
- (c) Certain colours showing dirt badly.
- (d) Expensive.

It may be helpful if we subjoin the observations of those who are engaged in the manufacture of rubber, and who, being anxious to promote its use, have made investigations into the causes of failure. (It must be distinctly understood that the Bureau of Information takes no further responsibility with regard to these observations than to state that they come from a reputable source.)

(a) Thickness. (Referring to rubber in rolls for use in corridors, etc.)

“Rubber of at least $\frac{3}{16}$ ” thickness should be used; $\frac{1}{8}$ ” is too thin to give complete satisfaction unless the traffic is light and the sub-floor smooth and level and free from faults. If the rubber flooring used is too thin, any irregularities of the sub-floor such as the joints of the floor boards, will show through in time and detract considerably from its appearance.”

(b) Sub-floors.

“Generally speaking, no trouble need be anticipated with sub-floors, whether of wood or concrete, which have been in existence for some time, are well seasoned and mature, and otherwise in good condition. Given a clean, dry, level, and compact surface, free from irregularities, the rubber floor may be laid with every chance of success.

"In classifying the complaints with regard to various floors, it has been noticed that the trouble is chiefly associated with a new sub-floor, more particularly a new concrete sub-floor. It would appear that new Portland cement concrete possesses certain inherent defects which are detrimental to the adhesive qualities of the substances used to secure the rubber to the sub-floor. These defects are (1) the presence of moisture due to the residue of water originally used in the mixing of the concrete, and (2) the slight dusting of the surface of Portland cement mortar caused by the liberation of free limes on the hydration of the cement.

"With regard to the first of these, it is an established fact that Portland cement when mixed with the aggregate only requires a certain quantity of water for its chemical action, and any excess of this requirement is got rid of by evaporation after the concrete is laid. This often takes a considerable time and in many cases is not apparent when complete. Concrete floors often appear quite dry on the surface within a few days of setting if the weather is favourable, but they are not necessarily dry underneath. It will thus readily be seen that if an impervious substance such as rubber is affixed to the surface of the concrete by means of an adhesive, the residue of the moisture in the concrete will rise to the surface and destroy the effect of the adhesive.

"Rubber flooring therefore should not be laid on a concrete sub-floor until the concrete is thoroughly dried out. This applies equally to the rough concrete and to the surface rendering of $\frac{3}{4}$ " of Portland cement and sand.

"If, as is usually the case, it is imperative to save time by laying a rubber floor as soon as possible after the concrete is laid and rendered with the surface screeding, the use of a rapid hardening cement, in which the setting is accompanied by a high temperature due to a chemical action on the cement itself, enables the concrete to be dry throughout twenty-four hours after laying. An aluminous cement, such as the well-known 'Ciment Fondu' will be found to give these results without any loss of strength in the concrete.

"The liberation by Portland cement of free lime in the form of slight dusting of the surface or efflorescence should be removed as far as possible by careful brushing. Rubber flooring will not stick to a dusty concrete any more than a gummed label will adhere to a dusty surface. Any reliable petrifying liquid applied to the surface screeding of Portland cement and sand in two coats and allowed to penetrate the pores of the cement will help to relieve this trouble.

"Wooden sub-floors, that is, floor boards laid on wooden joists or, as is sometimes the case, direct to the concrete may be divided into two classes, i.e., new and old. By old floors is meant those that have been in use for such a length of time that there can be no doubt as to their being properly seasoned and free from further movement owing to shrinkage. It is not advisable to lay a Rubber floor upon boards which have been laid direct upon concrete. If this is done it seals up the wood, prevents ventilation, and in time causes dry rot.

"New wooden floors are a source of trouble, owing to the practical impossibility of obtaining in these days wood that is thoroughly seasoned. Consequently shrinking and warping and the uneven movement, especially near hot water pipes and radiators, are generally fatal to a satisfactory floor."

(c) Dirt.

"Where the floor is to be subject to heavy traffic, as in the entrance halls of cinemas and theatres, etc., the colour should be kept to a darker tone. White would show the dirt more easily.

"Another point of subsidiary importance in selecting colours is the fact that a marbled variety, i.e., one containing streaks of varying colours, does not show the marks of traffic or other stains so readily as a plain or flat coloured rubber. This type of colour or mixture of colours can be made in a great variety of tints to resemble closely the veining of real marble."

SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS, SPLINTS AND RUBBER GLOVES.

ARRANGEMENTS IN 1930 AT LARGE GENERAL HOSPITALS FOR MAKING SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS AND SPLINTS, FOR THE REPAIR OF INSTRUMENTS AND RUBBER GLOVES AND FOR THE SHARPENING OF INSTRUMENTS.

Hospital.	No. of Beds.	Work undertaken by Staff of Hospital.
A	600	Manufactures own metal splints. Metal worker paid 1s. 6d. per hour. Leather worker paid 1s. 2d. per hour. Equipment includes oxy-acetylene welding plant and a leather-sewing machine. No equipment for sharpening or replating.
B	600	Only minor repairs to instruments are undertaken. No replating. Man employed for re-sharpening instruments—salary £ 4 per week. Manufactures own wooden, iron and leather splints, but not poro-plastic splints. Gloves repaired by sisters.
C	600	A joiner is employed on splints, part time. Repair, sharpening and replating of instruments is done by respective makers. Gloves repaired by staff nurse of each theatre.
D	400	Does not undertake repairs to surgical instruments. Two men employed on making of splints and surgical appliances. Installation, which includes forges, is expensive, as is aluminium or metal ware with which splints are made. Employs two fitters and one saddler.
E	400	Has a special staff which makes intricate orthopædic apparatus and equipment such as dressings and trolleys when required. Staff of cutler's department : Cutler £ 5 5s. per week. Skilled Asst. £ 2 10s. " Unskilled Asst. £ 2 5s. " Gloves repaired by theatre sister.
F	400	Manufactures own splints. Does not undertake repairing or replating of instruments. Doubtful if one man would do joinery work, leather work and instrument work. Went into question of undertaking this work, but came to the conclusion it would not pay. A number of instrument repairs could only be done if hospital had a large plant. Gloves repaired by theatre staff.
G	300	Some of the splints and some of the repairs are carried out by joiners and engineering staff. No special staff for this work—not considered a paying proposition.
H	300	Work not undertaken.
I	300	No staff for surgical instrument repairs.
J	300	No special staff. Carpenter makes ordinary wooden splints and certain simple iron ones.
K	300	All repairs undertaken by outside firms.
L	220	Wooden splints made by own joiners. Metal and poro-plastic apparatus purchased from outside sources. Repairs to instruments done by contract. Gloves repaired by theatre staff.
M	220	Amount of work insufficient to warrant setting up a special department.
N	220	Repairs to instruments, sharpening and replating is not undertaken by hospital staff but is contracted out. Splints made by engineering staff. Gloves repaired by theatre staff.
O	220	Does not do the work on the premises.
P	220	Not undertaken by hospital staff. Committee about to consider the question.

Note.—At 6 out of the 16 hospitals no work of the kind is undertaken, at 5 others only the manufacture of wooden splints is undertaken.

CONVALESCENT HOME FACILITIES FOR PATIENTS AFTER COLOSTOMY OPERATIONS.

ENQUIRIES were made recently with a view to ascertaining the names of Convalescent Homes which are willing to accept patients after Colostomy operations. The following is a summary of information supplied by 41 large hospitals in various parts of the country.

- 10 hospitals transfer such cases to their own convalescent homes.
- 1 hospital has two Homes of Recovery (one for women and children and the other for men), but it is not their practice to send Colostomy cases there. They are usually kept in the hospital wards until they can go home.
- 2 hospitals transfer chronic cases to Public Assistance Hospitals.
- 2 hospitals retain patients until fitted with a belt. They are then discharged, or (if chronic cases) transferred to Public Assistance Hospitals.
- 2 hospitals have occasionally made local arrangements for transfer to neighbouring Cottage Hospitals.
- 1 hospital has an arrangement with a local convalescent home to reserve a number of beds for patients from the hospital, but the home has just asked the hospital not to send Colostomy cases.
- 1 hospital transfers these cases to open-air balconies for a short time before discharge.

The remaining 22 hospitals have no arrangements for dealing with these cases, but some suggested names of institutions likely to admit such patients. Enquiries were made direct to these institutions and only one, viz. the Southport Convalescent Hospital, Southport, is prepared to admit patients following Colostomy operations without restriction as to which hospital they come from.

The following are extracts from the replies received from the other institutions :—

- (a) "You will, I am sure, agree with me that it would be a great mistake to endeavour to give benefit to one patient when, through offensiveness of the condition, many of the other patients were made uncomfortable. We have no separate accommodation for offensive cases. Under these circumstances the majority of Colostomy cases have to be refused admission to the home."
- (b) "This is a Home of Recovery and not a convalescent home, taking surgical cases soon after operation from specified London hospitals—9 altogether. We seldom take Colostomy, and we are unable to take cases from any other hospitals."
- (c) "We are unable to accept patients after the operation for Colostomy, as we have neither suitable accommodation nor sufficient staff to deal with such cases."
- (d) "We are unfortunately unable to do so as we find the unavoidable unpleasantness of their dressings detrimental to other patients. We have occasionally made an exception and admitted them to the isolation ward if it has happened to be available."
- (e) "We do not admit such patients to the home."
- (f) "I think this question of Colostomy cases is a big one. They are really not suitable for the small general wards of homes like this, where there are only a couple of trained nurses (the majority of the nursing staff being V.A.D.); and yet they must be holding up beds in the surgical wards of the general hospitals enormously. Probably something ought to be done about it. It is almost the same with those surgical T.B. cases. They are chronic cases which occupy beds for such a long time."

MENTAL CLINICS AT VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS.

THE following particulars were supplied by the Administrators of Voluntary Hospitals regarding Mental Clinics held at their hospitals.

Hospital A, containing 150 beds.

"We have no agreement with the Committee of the County Mental Hospital whereby Out-Patient Clinics are held at this Institution, although we run a special Mental and Neurasthenic Clinic of our own every Tuesday."

Hospital B, containing 190 beds.

"My Committee grant the use of a room in our Out-Patient Department, once weekly, in order that the Medical Superintendent of our local Mental Hospital may hold a Clinic. This Clinic is not managed by my Committee, and no responsibility is undertaken."

Hospital C, containing 300 beds.

"We have since April 1926 had an arrangement with the Mental Specialist from the County Mental Hospital to attend our Out-Patient Department, to see patients in regard to the early treatment of mental diseases.

"We have no special rules governing the arrangement, but the Specialist merely attends on the second Tuesday in each month at 10.30 a.m. to see such cases as are referred to him. He does not need the services of a house surgeon, and a nurse is only expected to attend his Clinic when called upon. The number of cases treated are few, but the arrangement has been found to be a good one and in no wise interferes with the general work of the Out-Patient Department."

Hospital D, containing 200 beds.

"We have at this Hospital an Out-Patient Clinic for the treatment of early cases of mental and nervous diseases, which is run in conjunction with the Civic Authorities. We have no formal agreement yet, the Department being experimental only. The Medical Officer in charge of the County Mental Hospital is in charge of the Clinic, and he attends the Hospital on one afternoon each week. Accommodation and nursing services are provided.

"The Hospital makes a nominal charge of £26 per annum, which covers out-of-pocket expenses. As regards out-patient case sheets, these are supplied by the Public Authorities themselves."

Hospital E, containing 350 beds.

"We have a Mental Clinic in connection with this Infirmary which is in charge of the Medical Superintendent of the Borough Mental Hospital. He attends at the Infirmary every Saturday morning at 11 a.m. and sees patients who have been discharged from the Mental Hospital as well as border-line cases. He also acts as a Consulting Physician to the Hospital and gives opinions on mental conditions in any cases referred to him by members of the staff. He brings his own nurse and in addition has the use of one of our nurses in the Out-Patient Department.

"The Local Health Authorities pay £52 per annum towards the cost of the Clinic, which I understand is doing very useful work."

Hospital F, containing 450 beds.

"Since 1st January 1929 we have had at this Infirmary a Mental Clinic. The Clinic constitutes an Out-Patient Department under the care of our Neurologist. Members of the medical staff of the Mental Asylum assist. The Clinic is held once weekly. A nurse from the Asylum is in attendance in order to assist the physician and medical officers with their work, along with one of our own nurses when required. Records are kept of the work done, and the results of the year just completed are considered satisfactory. The majority of the cases are what may be termed 'border-line.' These cases cannot be dealt with in the same way that ordinary medical cases can; a longer time must of necessity be taken for each case. Any hospital contemplating a Mental Clinic will find its patients not very numerous. The whole of the arrangements throughout the year have worked very smoothly."

Hospital G, containing 220 beds.

"We have recently established an Out-Patient Clinic at this Hospital for the treatment of early nervous disorders, but not at the suggestion of the Local Authorities, although I believe the need for one was under discussion by them.

"The Clinic is run in co-operation with the special Voluntary Hospital in the town for such disorders.

"The Medical Superintendent of the County Borough Mental Hospital has been elected solely as one of our own Honorary Medical Officers in charge. In view of the circumstances under which the Department was established it is being run like any other Department of the Hospital, there being, of course, no agreement or rules affecting the Local Authorities at present."

Hospital H, containing 180 beds.

"An Out-Patient Clinic for cases of mental and functional nervous disorders was opened at this Hospital in June 1927.

"In the first instance the Medical Superintendents of the Mental Hospitals in this neighbourhood attended in turn, but last year the Clinic was placed in charge of one Medical Officer, who is also a member of the Honorary Staff. The Clinic is open one afternoon each week.

"We have not entered into any agreement concerning the Clinic."

OPERATING THEATRES.

(a) MATERIALS USED FOR WALLS OF OPERATING THEATRES RECENTLY CONSTRUCTED.

(b) THE RATIO OF OPERATING THEATRES TO BEDS FOR SURGICAL CASES.

MATERIALS USED FOR WALLS.

FIFTY-EIGHT of the larger hospitals in various parts of the country, where operating theatres have been constructed during recent years, report as follows :—

No. of Hospitals.	Material Used.
16	Plaster and enamelled paint.
13	Tiles.
6	Terrazzo.
4	Glass tiling.
5	Vitrolite.
4	Biancola.
1	Glazed bricks.
1	Murazzo (fine mosaic).
	Lower Portion.	Upper Portion.
1	Terrazzo 8 feet.	Plaster painted.
1	Terrazzo 9 feet.	Plaster and enamel paint.
1	Biancola.	Cellulose enamel paint.
2	Tiles.	Enamel.
1	Marble 7 feet.	Opalite tiles.
1	Vitrolite 4½ feet.	Plaster and enamel paint.
1	Murazzo.	Plaster and enamel paint.

The following extracts from replies are of interest :—

- (a) "We use 'crystal' glass tiling, which retains colour more satisfactorily than ordinary tiles. It was used in our main theatres in 1906 and considered so successful that all theatres added since have been treated in a similar manner."
- (b) "We consider hard enamel on plaster better than tiles."
- (c) "Our theatre walls are of plaster and enamel paint, but chiefly on the score of expense."
- (d) "Our new theatres, opened in 1928, have glass walls. They are not a success, owing chiefly to inexperience in methods of fixing glass to the walls. Glass is an ideal material, but difficulties of fixing owing to contraction and expansion have not yet been satisfactorily overcome."

RATIO OF OPERATING THEATRES TO BEDS FOR SURGICAL CASES.

The following is a summary of information supplied by 62 large hospitals in various parts of the country with regard to the ratio of number of operating theatres to number of beds for surgical cases.

No. of Hospitals.	Ratio.
3	1 to 30 surgical beds.
7	1 " 40 " "
8	1 " 50 " "
30	1 " 60 " "
7	1 " 70 " "
2	1 " 80 " "
3	1 " 90 " "
1	1 " 100 " "
1	1 " 120 " "

One or two hospitals called attention to the fact that they have in addition a theatre for out-patient cases which is available in case of need.

The following extracts from the replies received are of interest :—

- (a) Hospital of 400 beds.
“ We aim at a theatre for each firm or special department. A firm has 60 beds, but at present 2 firms share a theatre.”
- (b) “ We have at present 1 operating theatre to 60 surgical beds, but the staff are agitating for an extra theatre for septic cases.”
- (c) “ 1 theatre to 60 beds is not sufficient. Our new block of 120 surgical beds contains 3 theatres. The extent of accident work is an important factor.”
- (d) “ 1 theatre to 60 surgical beds should be sufficient in ordinary hospitals, but in hospitals with Recovery Homes for surgical cases a theatre to 40 or 45 surgical cases would be needed.”

The following are examples of operating theatre provision in some of the larger hospitals :—

Hospital A.					No. of Theatres.	No. of Beds Served.

MEMORANDUM No. 35.

FORMS OF CONTRACT.

PROVISION MADE FOR ANY DROP IN THE MARKET VALUE OF A COMMODITY.

SIXTY-NINE of the larger hospitals in various parts of the country recently replied to an enquiry as to whether any provision was made in forms of contract used by them for any drop in the market value of a commodity. Of these 46 had no such provision and made no comment on the subject.

The following is a summary of the replies received from the remaining 23 hospitals :—

At 5 of the hospitals provision is made in the form of contract for a drop in the market value, namely,

- (a) Coke.
- (b) Coal.
- (c) Certain Drugs.
- (d) Various commodities.
- (e) Occasionally, but not in general use.

At 1 hospital provision is made against a drop, but only if it arises out of Government Duties.

1 hospital reserves the right to have a revision where the reduction in market value is material.

6 hospitals report that they only have contracts for short periods, consequently the need for any special provision to meet a fall in the market value of a commodity does not arise.

3 hospitals report that they do not have contracts and that they purchase in the open market.

At 7 hospitals provision is made in the forms of contract to allow for either a rise or fall. In 3 of these the provision is limited to the supply of bread only, and in 1, provision is made against either a rise or fall arising out of Government Duties.

MEMORANDUM No. 36.

ANNUAL CLEANING, PAINTING, ETC.

EXTENT TO WHICH LARGE HOSPITALS EMPLOY THEIR OWN STAFFS.

THE following is a summary of replies received from 57 large hospitals in various parts of the country in reply to an enquiry as to whether they employ their own staffs for annual cleaning, painting, etc.

10 hospitals report that this work is done entirely by their own staffs. These are all large hospitals containing 200 or more beds.

10 hospitals report that they have a small permanent staff for this work and employ additional labour as required.

At the remaining 37 hospitals the work is done entirely by contract.

THE PRACTICE OF HOSPITALS WITH REGARD TO INSURANCE AGAINST THIRD PARTY RISKS.

At the request of a hospital considering the question, an enquiry was sent to each of the Regional Secretaries of The British Hospitals Association asking for information regarding the practice in their areas. The following is an analysis of the information supplied by 44 hospitals of all sizes.

1. Liability to the public for damage to persons and/or property caused by the negligence on the part of the Insured's employees or through defect in plant or building (excluding 2, 3, and 4 undernoted).

Under this heading 18 of the 44 hospitals have covered their liability by insurance, in addition 3 have policies covering accidents arising out of the use of lifts only, and 1 has a policy covering accidents occurring in connection with lifts, boiler plant and laundry machinery. In addition to the above 1 hospital is covered under this heading in respect of the negligence of the staff only.

2. Liability in connection with Food and Drink Poisoning.

16 of the 44 hospitals have policies covering risks under this heading.

3. Liability for negligence of Doctors and Nurses.

15 of the 44 hospitals have policies covering possible claims under this heading and 1 has a policy to cover the negligence of the nursing staff only, limited to £250 in respect of any one claim. In addition 1 hospital is covered against claims arising out of the negligence of the Resident Medical Staff only.

4. Liability arising out of Electrical and X-Ray Treatment.

14 of the 44 hospitals have policies covering claims under this heading.

5. Injury to Patients conveyed in ambulances owned by the Hospitals.

Only 3 of the 44 hospitals supplying information have policies covering this risk. It is probable that in the majority of the other cases the hospitals do not own ambulances.

6. Possible claims in connection with the contraction of Impetigo.

The returns received show that 7 of the 44 hospitals are covered under this heading. It is probable that hospitals which are covered under this heading are not specifically insured in this connection but are covered in a general way by policies covering injuries to patients, the term injury being deemed to include illness.

7. Personal Accidents to Members of the Honorary Medical Staff.

Not one of the 44 hospitals which supplied information has any insurance under this heading.

At 6 of the hospitals which are covered by insurance under the headings 1, 2, 3, and 4, given above, the insurance has been effected in one policy. In the first case the policy is limited to £1,000 for any one accident and £5,000 for any year. In the second and third instances the liability is limited to £5,000 for any one accident. In the fourth case the liability is limited to £1,000 for any one accident and £2,000 for any year. In the fifth case the liability is limited to £1,000 for any one accident and in the sixth case the liability is limited to £500 for any one accident and £1,000 for any year.

The following extracts from the replies are of interest :—

- (1) "We do not cover the risks named by insurance. As a matter of fact we had an action brought against us some time ago which cost us somewhere about £200. The question of insurance was then gone into, but we formed the opinion that the cost of premium to give us a complete cover would be prohibitive and we therefore carry our own risks."
- (2) "I have obtained a quotation of 4s. per bed per annum to cover these risks. As to the Honorary Medical Staff a sum of £120 per annum is available for the payment of compensation to any member of the Honorary or Salaried Medical Staff who may die or suffer financial loss through sepsis contracted in the discharge of his duties."

- (3) "For some years now we have had a Personal Accident and All-Sickness Policy in respect of the Resident Medical Staff. The following are the benefits: 'In case of illness the Hospital pays the full salary and collects the weekly payments from the Insurance Company.' The policy was taken out because some years ago a House Surgeon lost a finger through sepsis. The Insurance Company took the opinion of Counsel, who decided that the case of Wilson v. Edinburgh Royal Infirmary precluded the House Surgeon from making any claim. An ex gratia payment of £100 was paid. The Board of Management therefore took out a policy so that in case any further accident happened some payment might be made by right to the House Surgeon."
- (4) "The question of Public Liability was considered here two years ago following an action brought by the friends of a deceased patient against an Honorary Surgeon for neglect. The action failed, but the Board of Management resolved, after considering quotations from Insurance Companies, to transfer £75 per annum to a Public Liability Reserve Account. The balance in this account is now £156 9s. A discontinuance of this annual payment will be made when the balance is considered to be adequate."
- (5) "We have no cover for liability arising out of electrical and X-ray treatment. I might mention that we have an arrangement with the local authorities for the treatment of ring-worm by X-rays, and before treatment is given the parent or guardian is asked to sign a form authorising the infirmary to treat and declaring that the hospital, its doctors or nurses, shall not be liable for any damages arising out of such treatment."
- (6) "Arising out of all the above risks, we have paid out during the last sixteen years, a total of £25."

In addition to the information received direct from hospitals, the following reports were received from Regional Secretaries of The British Hospitals Association.

1. Scottish Branch.

Enquiries were made of several of the larger hospitals and the following information ascertained.

Under Heading 1 (Public Liability).

Most hospitals have policies covering their liability.

Under Headings 2, 3, and 4 (Food and Drink Poisoning, Negligence of Doctors and Nurses and claims arising out of Electrical and X-Ray Treatment).

As far as can be ascertained policies covering these risks are not taken out by Scottish hospitals.

Under Heading 5.

Ambulances are not owned by hospitals in Scotland.

Under Heading 7.

Most unusual for such policies to be effected.

2. North-Western Region.

As far as can be ascertained none of the hospitals in this region have taken out insurance policies to cover any of the risks mentioned.

The following extracts are from a letter written by a solicitor who has great experience in this class of work and to whom the Memorandum was submitted.

"The legal position of hospitals with regard to patients was considered very fully in the Court of Appeal in the case of Hillyer v. The Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in the year 1909, when the defendants pleaded successfully that if they owed any duty to the plaintiff, it was to exercise reasonable care in the selection of the hospital staff, in which duty they had not failed. That does not, of course, mean that every surgeon or physician or even nurse must possess the highest qualifications, but they must be competent to the knowledge of the Governors of the hospital.

"Further, the Court said that the hospital authorities must place at the disposal of the surgeons and physicians and nurses, for the care and treatment of the patients, fit and proper apparatus and appliances.

"Nurses when in the operating room are under the orders and control of the surgeons, and for anything done or omitted by the nurses under such orders and directions the hospital authorities are not responsible.

“ Apart from that the nurses and all the rest of the hospital staff are servants of the hospital, and the hospital authorities are liable for their neglect and carelessness just in the same way as a man is liable for the negligent acts of his chauffeur or other servant. If there be any negligence on the part of the nurses in their ministerial or administrative duties, such as their attendance in the wards, the summoning of medical aid in cases of emergency, the giving of proper food, the due care of the patient in bed, the supply and use of proper bed-clothes and appliances, then for the nurses’ negligence in these matters the hospital authorities are answerable and must pay damages for any injury that may occur, or (as was stated in the St. Bartholomew’s case) the hospital authorities are legally responsible ‘ to the patients for the efficiency, the propriety, and the observance of regulations by their servants.’

“ Summing up it comes to this, that a hospital will be held liable for damage which may occur to any patient (private ward or paying or gratuitous) for anything which may happen where there is negligence or want of care unless it be the negligence or carelessness of a surgeon or physician in the operation upon or treatment of the patient, or of a nurse actually acting under the directions and control of such surgeon or physician.

“ There will also be liability where appliances and apparatus are defective if by reasonable care in their selection and maintenance the defect should have been discovered.

“ In the case of patients who pay the charges for wards, be they general or private, there is a further liability for a defect in the ward or anything therein which causes injury unless such defect was latent and could not by any reasonable means have been discovered.”

ASSESSMENT OF HOSPITALS.

ALTHOUGH everyone feels that the present method, or lack of method, in the assessing of hospitals for rating purposes is unsatisfactory, yet no one has been able to suggest any remedy that is not likely to meet with a by no means inconsiderable body of opposition among the Voluntary Hospitals themselves. There is scarcely any doubt that were the Voluntary Hospitals and their supporters to put forward a united demand for something of a reasonable and uniform character they would be able to obtain it. But there is no agreement among the hospitals, and official opposition which generally relies largely upon the alleged difficulty in defining a Voluntary Hospital is quite strong enough to overcome any demand that is only partially supported or put forward in a half-hearted fashion.

The Cave Committee were unable to make any recommendation upon this subject. In their Final Report, issued in 1921, they said :—

“ We are asked to recommend that hospital buildings should be exempted from rates. Many of these buildings are not unfavourably assessed; but there is no doubt that upon some of them the burden of rates falls very heavily, and some London hospitals pay upwards of £5,000 a year in rates. It is true that a general statutory exemption would be a serious matter for some parishes, and especially for those London parishes which include several large hospitals; but this difficulty might be overcome by spreading the loss over a larger area or by giving to the rating authority a discretion to remit all or part of the rates. The proposal to give such a discretion has found some support; and there is a precedent in Scotland, where the power to excuse hospitals from police rate is freely used. But the view has prevailed that any proposal leading to the exemption of Voluntary Hospitals from rating would lead to similar claims on behalf of other charitable and public buildings, and that it is undesirable to make so large an inroad into the rating system. We therefore make no recommendation under this head.”

Subsequent efforts to ascertain the wishes and the view of the hospitals have led to no result.

So far as the Provincial hospitals are concerned the present situation is set forth in the following circular issued by The British Hospitals Association :—

The Council of The British Hospitals Association have done all in their power, both by correspondence and by deputations to the Ministry of Health and to the Central Valuation Committee, to ascertain the facts regarding the Assessment of the Voluntary Hospitals.

They have endeavoured to form an opinion with regard to :—

- (1) The amount of money involved.
- (2) The maximum uniform rate per bed at which in the interest of the hospitals as a whole joint action, if taken, should aim.
- (3) The possibilities at the present time of securing by joint action either a generally acceptable uniform rate per bed or de-rating.

The Council are of opinion that as matters stand at present joint action would either be ineffective or, if successful in securing uniformity, such uniformity, taking the hospitals as a whole, would involve an assessment higher than the average of the assessment likely to be arrived at by negotiations between each hospital and its local Assessment Authority.

The Council have ascertained that the Central Advisory Committee are able to exert no more pressure upon local Assessment Authorities in favour of hospitals than is expressed in the Fourth Series of Representations made to the Minister of Health, circulated to all Public Authorities.

They have also ascertained that de-rating could only be brought about by a special Act of Parliament or by a test action in the Law Courts. They therefore suggest that each hospital should, either singly or in conjunction with the other hospitals in the same County, make the best terms possible with the Assessment Authorities.

The insistence of Local Authorities to continue rating hospitals even though they are prepared to treat them with the utmost consideration, in some cases springs from the feeling that under schemes of contribution from patients, grants from the Government for specific services, etc., the hospitals are losing their purely charitable character. Under the Public Health Act, 1925, City and County Authorities—which are large employers of those who seek the help of hospitals in sickness and accident—were empowered to make grants to hospitals. Though these grants should not be offset against the rates by way of a bargain, it is only logical that if the hospital is rated on one hand, the grant for its services should be paid on the other. Hospitals who are not receiving grants are advised to enquire as to their position.

Note.—Under the Local Government Act, 1929, the limit of grants to 1*d.* rate imposed by the Public Health Act, 1925, was increased by 33½ per cent.

The situation in London, where the Re-assessment of hospitals is being done later than in the Provinces, is similar. The hospitals are not prepared to take joint action.

The matter is difficult and extremely complicated.

Some of the questions that arise are :—

- (1) What is a Voluntary Hospital ?
- (2) On what basis should a Voluntary Hospital, if it can be defined, be assessed ?
- (3) What uniform basis of assessment, if such can be devised, would impose a lesser burden upon hospitals as a whole, than the one they are at present carrying ?
- (4) Would total de-rating be unpopular ? An authority in removing the burden of the rate from a hospital would, of necessity, be compelled to place it on some other shoulder and so, possibly, raise some feeling of resentment.
- (5) Would total de-rating be interpreted as “ being on the rates ” ?

These and other questions make it difficult to see how joint action of any useful kind can be taken.

Lastly, not a few hospitals enjoy preferential rating, direct or indirect, and not unnaturally fear that in asking for more they may lose that which they have got.

Although the hospitals themselves have not been able to agree upon any action, certain Members of the House of Commons have introduced a Bill in the following terms :—

- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any local or general Act of Parliament no body or person shall be liable to pay rates in respect of any lands or buildings used for or in connection with a hospital wholly or mainly maintained by voluntary contributions, subscriptions, gifts or legacies.

For the purpose of this section hospital means a hospital for the treatment of disease, sickness, accidents, deformity or other afflictions of persons, and includes convalescent homes, nursing institutions, sanatoria, infirmaries and other institutions of a similar character.

- (2) The rateable value of lands or buildings or parts thereof owned or leased by a hospital wholly or mainly maintained by voluntary contributions, subscriptions, legacies or gifts, and used for or in connection with any of the following purposes :—

- (a) Hostels for persons in training for the medical or nursing profession ;
- (b) Buildings or parts thereof used solely for the purposes of instructional training in connection with the medical or nursing profession ;
- (c) Nursing homes which are separate from the main building of a hospital and used for the treatment of paying patients ;
- (d) Buildings used for residences for the administrative staff of the hospital ; shall be taken to be one half of the net annual value thereof.

- (3) This Act shall come into force on and after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-one.
- (4) This Act may be cited as the Hospitals (Relief from Rating) Act 1930.

The situation is certainly not altogether a satisfactory one. It is possible that the decision of those acting on behalf of the hospitals to allow matters to develop as they may is the wisest in the circumstances.

RELATIONSHIP OF THE VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS TO THE APPROVED SOCIETIES.

IN 1921 the Voluntary Hospitals Committee set up by the Ministry of Health issued an interim Report based upon the quinquennial valuation of the Approved Societies, which was then just coming to a conclusion, and the Scheme for the application of the disposable surplus.

In this Report occur the words "we are strongly of opinion that in the interests both of the Hospitals and of the Societies, the Scheme to be approved should provide for the application of a substantial part of the disposable surplus in providing a contribution towards the cost of the maintenance of Members in Hospitals." Indeed the Report goes further and urges the Minister not to approve of any scheme for the disposal of the surplus until the suggestion that the Hospitals should benefit has received due consideration. No room is left for doubt as to the views of the Committee regarding the priority of the claims of the Hospitals.

The claims of the Hospitals are to-day as strong as, or stronger than they were in 1921.

Any curtailment of the services of the Voluntary Hospitals, whether in-patient or out-patient, would react disastrously on the finances of the Approved Societies and on the well-being of their members. Yet it is no more than a simple statement of fact to say that such curtailment is inevitable unless the Societies recognise the priority of the claims of the Hospitals to share adequately in the disposable surpluses. Thousands of insured patients have been treated, and are still being treated, in the Voluntary Hospitals without any monetary recognition on the part of many of the Approved Societies. Disposable surpluses should surely first be utilised to discharge existing obligations before entering into any undertaking to make payments for other additional benefits. An important Conference between The British Hospitals Association and the leading Approved Societies on the 19th November, 1926, reaffirmed and emphasised the arrangement made in 1921 that grants made to Hospitals by Approved Societies were to be supplementary to, and not to take the place of, any sums that patients themselves may contribute towards the cost of their maintenance in Hospital. It is therefore difficult to reconcile this understanding with the instructions issued in June 1930 by the Ministry of Health to all Approved Societies, which ran as follows :—

"Further, when considering an application the Committee of Management may also have regard to the fact that the member may have a reasonable prospect of obtaining the treatment or appliance, or a contribution towards the cost thereof, from some outside source otherwise than by way of charity. This position may arise, e.g., in connection with :—

- "(a) treatment in a hospital or convalescent home, to which the member may have a right in virtue of voluntary payments; or
- "(b) surgical appliances, such as artificial limbs, which may be provided through an employer's or other fund not being wholly charitable."

There is a tendency in some localities to interpret (a) as being applicable to members of Contributory Schemes which in some form or other are to-day associated with the majority of the Voluntary Hospitals.

CENTRAL FUND FOR THE PROVINCIAL VOLUNTARY HOSPITALS.

It has been long felt that in some respects the Provincial Voluntary Hospitals have been somewhat at a disadvantage as compared with those in London.

The King's Fund has proved a source of strength to the London Hospitals both financially and administratively. The Provincial Hospitals have had no such sympathetic and helpful organisation to which to look for assistance.

The proposal to establish a Central Fund for the Provinces was first made at a Conference of The British Hospitals Association held in Manchester in June 1925. The concrete scheme which was put forward as an outcome of this Conference failed to find complete favour with the hospitals before which it was formally placed at their Conference at Sheffield in the following year.

Since that date, however, the situation has become largely modified. A very considerable sum of money was lost to the Provincial Voluntary Hospitals owing to the fact that there was no Central Fund to which to leave it.

Again, on the occasion of the Thanksgiving Fund for His Majesty's Recovery, the organisation of a collection in the Provinces was, for the same reason, more difficult than it would otherwise have been. There is little doubt that through lack of machinery the Provinces as a whole were unable to show adequately the real extent of their gratitude upon this occasion.

Lastly the burden of road traffic accidents has again shown the disadvantages of there being no Central Fund. The obligation to admit and to treat those who are the unfortunate victims of road accidents not infrequently falls most heavily upon the smaller Provincial Hospitals that are least able to find the money for the purpose.

A Central Fund, able to distribute money upon the basis of the work actually done, would have helped to relieve a somewhat difficult situation.

To-day, the Provincial Voluntary Hospitals, realising that a Central Fund would prove a source of strength to them, at the Annual Conference held at Newcastle-upon-Tyne on the 17th June 1930, agreed that :—

“ Inasmuch as the benefits of King Edward's Fund for London are limited to Hospitals within the London area, The British Hospitals Association, as the representative Association of those Hospitals in Great Britain and Northern Ireland which are under voluntary management, is prepared to accept donations and legacies for distribution, at the discretion of the Council, among Voluntary Hospitals outside the London area. Donations and legacies may be allocated for distribution among Hospitals within any defined regional area outside London.

“ The Association is also prepared to accept donations and legacies for furthering such of the general objects of the Association as the Council may, from time to time, think fit.”

A Committee consisting of :—

The President, The Hon. Sir Arthur Stanley, G.B.E., C.B., M.V.O.,
The Chairman of Council, Alderman Sir Harold Pink, J.P.,
The Rt. Hon. Lord Armstrong, D.C.L., J.P.,
The Rt. Hon. Lord Cozens-Hardy, D.L.,
The Lord Moynihan, K.C.M.G., C.B.,
H. N. Crouch, Esq.,
A. Godwin Pratt, Esq., J.P.,

has been appointed to consider how best to bring into effect this Resolution.

The Offices of The British Hospitals Association are at 12, Grosvenor Crescent, London, S.W. 1, and donations may be made to the Honorary Secretary at that address.

CONTRIBUTORY SCHEMES.

ALTHOUGH Contributory Schemes or their forerunners are of a respectable antiquity—there were workmen's collections in Glasgow more than 100 years ago—it is only since the war that they have become a generally recognised source of hospital support. Among the more important of these post-war Schemes may be mentioned those existing in London, Sheffield, Liverpool, and Oxford.

Owing to the difficulty in drawing clear-cut dividing lines between the various forms of collective effort it is not possible to give the actual amount to be attributed to Contributory Schemes pure and simple. It is, however, safe to say that no source of hospital support has increased during recent years at anything like the same rate, and that to-day hospitals must rely more and more upon it. This somewhat luxuriant growth has not been altogether unaccompanied by very important developments along lines not altogether contemplated by the founders of the Schemes. While they were local and of comparatively small importance there was not much need to consider matters of policy or of principle, but now that they are increasing in number and size so fast, it is of vital importance that there should be some general agreement with regard to fundamentals while allowing variations to meet local customs and needs.

In order that the subject might receive the widest possible consideration, The British Hospitals Association invited Sir Robert Bolam, whose close connection with the British Medical Association is well known, and Lord Cozens-Hardy, the Chairman of the Merseyside Hospitals Council, to read papers at the Annual Conference held on 18th–21st June, 1930. It was rather in his position as Chairman of the Hon. Medical Staff of the Royal Victoria Infirmary, Newcastle-on-Tyne—a large general hospital with a medical school, towards the support of which the organised contribution of mine and factory amount to some £50,000 per annum—that Sir Robert Bolam addressed the Association, but the fact that he was so closely identified with the hospital policy of the British Medical Association added to the interest of his address and gave his hearers the opportunity of listening to an admirably clear statement of a policy with which, possibly, many of them were not altogether in sympathy. Lord Cozens-Hardy gave an equally clear and able exposition of a modern Contributory Scheme organised on the basis of an area covering a thickly populated district and including a number of important hospitals. The following extracts from these two important papers set forth the main points which call for serious consideration.

Sir Robert Bolam said :

Seven years ago The British Hospitals Association during its Annual Meeting, at the instance of the late Sir Napier Burnett, gave some consideration to Contributory Schemes. Since then such Schemes have increased in number and magnitude, and, though one would scarce have thought it possible, in variety. Since then, also, the demand from all classes of the community for further service on the part of Voluntary Hospitals has become more insistent. The wage-earner and the salaried worker now expect service as by right, whilst those higher in the economic scale do not hesitate to voice their desire for like facilities.

In various centres there have been set up Funds or Associations or Contributory Schemes for the purpose of enabling men and women in receipt of regular wages or income to save while in health for the hospitals, and to pool their savings so that they may collectively reimburse the hospitals for services rendered to individuals among them and may be relieved from expense when they are sick and have probably little or no money coming in. The reasons for the growth of such schemes may be summarised in the four following sentences which are in effect taken from the leaflets of perhaps the largest of these schemes—the Hospital Saving Association:—

- “(1) The Voluntary Hospitals while continuing, in accordance with the principles upon which they were founded, to care for the necessitous poor without payment, are no longer able to give their services free of charge to patients in receipt of regular wages or income.
- “(2) Those who can afford to pay are now asked to pay towards the cost of their maintenance, but payments by patients cover only a fraction of their cost, and, even so, fall hardly on wage-earners at times of sickness and unemployment.
- “(3) The hospitals need a larger income and a more assured income if they are to carry on their work satisfactorily and extend its scope to meet the steadily increasing demand for further service.

“(4) The wage-earner who may need the hospital for himself or his family naturally does not want to make a heavy payment to a hospital at a time when he can least afford it, nor does he wish to be dependent, whilst in hospital, on funds subscribed by the charitable for the sick poor.”

In Schemes associated directly with particular hospitals, the amount given has usually varied from threepence per week to a farthing per week or even less per individual contributor. In some instances the contribution is paid periodically with great regularity to the hospital concerned, in others it comes at irregular intervals and in varying amounts. Some groups of workers keep up their payments through good times and bad; others contribute well when employment is good and perhaps not at all when it is bad. The most favoured method of collection is that of an arrangement with the employer to deduct an agreed contribution from wages at the source. The money so obtained may be transmitted direct as a massed contribution to the hospital by the employing firm. Or it may be paid to a representative of the workers, who may send it to a hospital or hospitals either intact or after deductions for administrative expenses or other purposes, such, for example, as travelling expenses of patients. In other instances the employees set up some collecting agency in the works and voluntarily and regularly contribute thereto—the money is not deducted at the source. In others, again, the collections are made irregularly, even spasmodically.

The money in whatever way collected is seldom at present used to discharge accounts rendered for services by hospitals to individual contributors or their dependents. It is generally sent in bulk to the hospital, which in return usually exempts all contributors and dependents from any inquiries as to financial status and from requests for payment in regard to hospital benefits when they become patients of the hospital. The result of this is that some groups of workers pay adequately for the services given by the hospital and others with much the same earnings get these services for a very inadequate contribution. Others again, of the same financial standing, make use of the hospital and neither make any regular contribution nor reimburse the hospital when they have received service there.

There appears to be one obvious remedy for this inequitable state of affairs, namely that the hospitals should definitely require from all persons above a certain income limit, payment for maintenance and treatment. This income limit should be reasonable having regard to the local circumstances, and the almoner or registration officer of the hospital should have power, after inquiry into any cases of hardship, to vary the limit according to the necessities of the case. Every person above the agreed limit should be admitted to hospital only on the distinct understanding that payment of the hospital charges would be forthcoming from the patient, or person or body responsible for the patient.

Contributory Schemes not directly associated with individual hospitals, but organising massed contributions for groups of hospitals or for areas, show considerable variety in their constitution and methods. The larger provincial Schemes appear mainly to have adopted the penny in the pound rate, which in practice works out much the same as a twopence to threepence per week flat rate. They have taken the easier path in dealing with hospitals by giving block grants allocated usually in ratio to the mass of work done, not by making payment of accounts in respect of individual members of schemes actually treated. Doubtless much clerical and accountancy work is thereby avoided. If all persons of the income grade for which Contributory Schemes are established would in fact voluntarily join such Schemes many difficulties would disappear and block grants might then be an advisable way of administering the funds. At present it would seem that unless hospitals will aid the spread of the movement by insisting on equal payment by all patients of like financial status difficulties and dissatisfaction are bound to arise. It is manifestly unfair that the provident wage-earner supporting a Contributory Scheme should be penalised in opportunity for hospital treatment because his careless and neglectful colleagues will not help to provide the current expenditure for hospital extensions which would give service to all.

Every rightly conducted hospital must be able to preserve the one and only criterion of admission to its service—the medical or surgical emergency of the case. The moment this is departed from the hospital is in danger of becoming merely a member's club. The great fear governing bodies and staffs have hitherto had in regard to Contributory Schemes has been that the acceptance of regular contributions from the members would create a contract to treat them on demand. This apprehension can be removed and the position of the hospitals guarded by setting up a Scheme, Fund or Association distinct and separate from the hospitals and letting it be plainly understood that the decision as to the suitability of any case for admission to any hospital is made on medical grounds by the medical staff of that hospital.

Those groups of workers who at the present time are making regular contributions should make them not direct to any one hospital but to a Hospitals Contributory Fund, and the Fund would pay the particular hospital which treated any member as a patient. A voucher from the Fund would free a member or his dependant from all inquiries as to financial standing and would be accepted by the hospital as a guarantee of payment. Certain groups of wage-earners already are giving weekly an amount which would entirely cover the necessary contribution to such a Fund. Other groups would find it necessary to increase their contribution and to make it regularly. Others, again, who at present give no support to hospitals, would either join the Fund or would have to arrange to pay the hospital charges at the time of admission as patients. Individual contributors could be accepted as members of the Fund under certain conditions. It is reasonable to anticipate that in a very short time a much greater number of workpeople would be making regular provision against the possibility of needing hospital treatment than is at present the case. A weekly contribution of twopence or threepence per employed person to such a Fund would probably suffice for hospital treatment charges in most provincial areas, and if threepence were the sum fixed it should often be possible to accumulate funds for convalescent treatment, surgical appliances, etc. Instead of having a single fixed rate of contribution the method of a rate varying according to the wages earned might be adopted. The so-called "penny-in-the-pound" system is an example of a variable rate. In this the contribution is at the rate of one penny in each pound of wages.

Employers of labour have in the past joined with their workpeople in direct support of the hospitals. In areas where contributory scheme funds are organised outside the hospitals, they have also given their support to these funds. In many instances where the penny in the pound system prevails, employers have given sums equal to one-third or one-fourth of the total amount of their employees' contributions.

The Fund should be managed by Governors, Council or Committee representative of all interests involved. In the case of a Fund dealing with a large area, probably the best plan to pursue is that which has been adopted by the Hospital Saving Association in London or the Merseyside Hospitals Council—namely to become incorporated under the Companies' Acts as a Company not for profit.

Recent legislation has brought more prominently into the field the possibilities of general hospital service by local authorities. Such service, if provided to any considerable extent, must affect the situation in many ways. There are two matters which have special bearing—first, the provision made in the 1929 Local Government Act for payments to local authorities for hospital service from schemes of the contributory type; second, the effect on the visiting staffs of voluntary hospitals in areas where local authorities staff general hospitals of their own providing by part-time visiting consultants, or where whole-time medical officers under the local authority are permitted private practice.

The duty laid on local authorities to recover whenever possible from general hospital patients the whole of the expense incurred in their maintenance and treatment can be met by coming to an arrangement with a Contributory Scheme in the area as to terms on which members shall be treated. It is obviously advisable that in any area the voluntary hospital and the council hospital should come to the same agreement on this matter with the Contributory Scheme management.

To predict the effect of the Local Government Act, 1929, on hospital services is not an easy task, but there are certain indications already of the kind of development to be expected. It seems probable that so soon as the medical services of the poor law grade of patient (now provided by County Councils or Borough Councils) are placed on a satisfactory basis progressive councils will undoubtedly set to work to remedy shortage in general hospital service for all grades of the community they serve. Even now schemes to this end are in process of initiation. There may be expected within the next decade a great effort to extend hospital service to an extent not hitherto known in our experience. A feeling exists in many quarters that in providing such extension the best features of the voluntary hospital service should be continued in the council hospitals. These may include administration by ad hoc representative committees, staffing by part-time medical officers of consultant status, and whenever possible association with a teaching school or hospital. Institutions managed on such lines will soon rank high in public esteem. For equipment and extensions they will have behind them the public purse. Voluntary hospitals will find it hard to co-operate on equal terms unless benefactions are largely devoted to similar purposes and current revenue is derived from adequate payments made by the great bulk of their patients. For such current expenditure one believes that Contributory Schemes offer the only satisfactory means of provision in sight.

The continued encroachment of hospital work on the private consulting field in the last few years has altogether altered the position of the medical staffs. Extension of general hospital provision by local authorities will still further affect this position. The staffs, whether whole or part-time, of council hospitals will be paid. It is impossible to resist the conclusion that visiting staffs in the voluntary hospitals must also be paid, whether by salary, honorarium or staff fund. The necessary increase in number of adequately trained consultants and specialists to staff an extended hospital service can we believe only be attained by offering definite remuneration to the visiting staff in respect of all but the free patients who come within the real meaning of the definition "sick and lame poor." The opinion of the profession is definitely against accepting such remuneration directly from contributing schemes and all in favour of the method of organising schemes under public and responsible management outside the hospitals.

The best and most economical hospital service for the community in any area can only be obtained by full co-operation between the voluntary hospitals of all grades and the council hospitals of the local authority or authorities. To this end all hospitals—voluntary or council—in the area should adopt and enforce two agreed income limits.

A. A lower or poverty limit below which all patients should be deemed free patients and should be given gratuitous maintenance and treatment.

B. A higher limit :—

- (1) Below which all patients should be deemed contributing patients and should pay a maintenance and treatment charge at a rate providing for all maintenance costs of the hospital and treatment fees for medical services on a modified basis;
- (2) Above which all patients should be deemed private patients and should pay maintenance charges and medical fees appropriate to their financial status.

The agreed income limits might well differ in various areas according to local circumstances, but there are many localities where the lower limit (A) might be fixed at 30s. per week or £75 per annum, and the higher limit (B) at £5 per week or £250 per annum, allowances being made in both instances where special burdens or hardships necessitated.

Those interested in hospital management in the locality should assist in the formation on approved lines of a Contributory Scheme or Schemes for the area independent of any particular hospital. No hospital should continue to organise any individual Scheme involving direct relations with contributing members. Admission of patients to hospital should be according to the medical or surgical emergency of the case in each grade of patient, whether free, contributing or private.

In developing his paper Sir Robert Bolam said :

The voluntary hospital system in Great Britain has been an admirable thing. Bit by bit it has been eaten into by circumstances. It has passed from its old voluntary application to something entirely different, and it is finished as we knew it thirty years ago. It is finished, but there are things in it that those of us who are interested must strive with might and main to perpetuate and to continue. There are certain features of the voluntary hospital system which remain and which we must with every effort uphold. The one cardinal thing from the medical point of view—and I speak here in a double capacity, as one who has served as a medical officer and as one who is interested also in management, the one thing from the medical point of view that is important, in order that medical science may be developed, in order that good service may be given to the people, is that they should be allowed to continue to work under voluntary management. There are advantages in State or in Local Authority management, but, believe me, the medical profession of past years, and still of the present day, feels that the atmosphere will be freer, that there is more chance for development, for experiment, and for proper accomplishment of our work, if we can work under voluntary management. I believe that the voluntary management of voluntary hospitals is the one thing that is worth making every effort to continue.

Now, let me say what I imagine is a voluntary management. Voluntary management is the management of the hospital by a body of men and women of experience in business, in learning, in the affairs of the workpeople, and in fact of all grades of experience, men and women who have some kindred bond in developing, by voluntary service, this particular form of aid to the community. That is the essence of a voluntary management hospital, and it is the only thing that is left really to-day, in most places, of the voluntary hospital system. You may say that is a challenging statement and is not correct, but I ask you to look at what has been happening in the hospitals throughout the country this last decade or two decades. Every hospital of any size, whilst giving to the very poor full service without question and without price, says to the others, workers and salaried persons in the hospital: "You must pay." Sometimes it is: "You must pay before you enter, and you must engage to pay while you are here, but in any case you must pay to the limit of your capacity, in order that we may be able to carry on the work." And then a further grade are asked to pay full maintenance rates and full medical rates. Now that is not the old idea of the voluntary hospital. The old idea of the voluntary hospital was a free institution, with gratuitous service to everyone. That has passed, and it could not help but pass, and with the advent of the council, or the public, or the municipal hospital, as you may call it, there is a further change which is inevitable. Your council hospital must be conducted on certain lines. It must have a responsible person in charge of it. Its staff must be paid by the local authority, so that the local authority may have control over that staff, its going and coming. And it has behind it the public purse; it has behind it that which will make the hospital as efficient in plant and buildings as any man may desire. All that is wanting to it is enlightened management and an adequate staff.

Let me tell you something of the attitude of the medical profession during this last few years. Fifteen years ago, those who are termed "honorary staffs" would have said to a proposition for any remuneration or payment, "No, we do not desire anything of the sort; we won't consider it." Ten years ago, the attitude was altering. In the last three years it has altered beyond all recognition. And why? Because of the insistent demand for more service. More hospital service means a less field for private enterprise outside. There is no question that both the municipal hospital and the voluntary hospital must serve the whole community; they cannot be class hospitals. Let us get that firmly fixed in our minds. They are not for one class alone. They are assets too valuable to the community to be segregated for the use of any one particular class; their functions and virtues must be available for everybody.

Your Contributory Schemes have this great fault, that they are mostly attached to hospitals. They ought to be outside the hospitals. No hospital should put itself in the situation of being the servant of a Contributory Scheme. You strike at the root of the hospital's existence. The hospital must never be a members' club; it must be an institution which can select the most urgent cases out of any particular grade of the people who ask its services. It must select the most urgent amongst the poor, the most urgent amongst the contributing patients, and the most urgent amongst the private patients. There is only one criterion—the medical or surgical urgency of the case, and you must shelter yourselves behind the medical staff, who are the people to determine that urgency; otherwise you have lost for ever your position as a rightly conducted institution.

It is not really difficult to arrange matters so that schemes that are already in touch with hospitals shall be put outside hospitals. All that is necessary is to take the personnel that now gathers your subscriptions, and constitute with it a Contributory Scheme for the area. The same people, in another capacity, may very well be managing your hospital, but so far as the gathering of the money is concerned it ought to be separate from the hospital management, and the Scheme should pay the hospital for work done. That is the essential feature.

I am speaking here in an industrial county. None of my working-men friends, who take such an interest in the hospitals of this area, have the least doubt about the advisability of recognising the services of the staff. Our only difficulty is to frame a proposition acceptable to both sides. The principle is conceded.

Another thing which worries my friends is the question of Area Contributory Schemes as against Hospital Contributory Schemes. Just before I sit down I should like to say one word on that. The Area Contributory Scheme is to my mind the rationalisation of such organisations. At the present time I know working-men in this district who are contributing, in one way or another, to perhaps five or six or even more hospitals and like institutions—an absurd and uneconomical arrangement—and they, the good people, are carrying the burden of the others who are careless, who will not take any thought for the morrow, and who, when the time comes to be taken into hospital, are not at that moment in a position to contribute anything to the hospital funds. Now it is manifestly unfair to those good people that we should go on as we have been doing. No Contributory Scheme will ever flourish as it should flourish unless the hospitals make the first move. The hospitals must say that people between, say, 30s. a week on the lower level and £250 or £350 a year on the higher level, must pay; that the hospital is not for them without payment. If they will not join a contributory scheme, so that the fund will be available for them when they are sick, then they must pay at the time. The municipal hospital is going to do that, and if the municipal hospital does it we cannot carry on on the old lines, because eventually they will beat us down. What we want to do is to flourish side by side with them and co-operate with them. A magnificent structure like the voluntary hospitals organisation must not be allowed to sink into second place. It should be stripped of the things which are out of date; its essential principles should be conserved and perpetuated, and only then the service to the whole community will be what it ought to be.

Lord Cozens-Hardy said :

It is not putting it too high to say that the wonderful improvement in the financial position of the voluntary hospitals since the war is in large measure due to Contributory Schemes, and it is no small achievement to have converted a deficit of £460,000 on the working of the provincial voluntary hospitals in 1920 into a surplus of £800,000 in 1928. Prominent amongst the advantages of Contributory Schemes are the regularity of their income and the opportunities which they afford of increasing the interest of those who use the hospitals and of giving them an active share in the management of the institutions. More than 300 schemes are believed to be in operation. A study of particulars of the most important schemes indicated considerable variations in detail but a great family resemblance in them all, and I concluded that my best course was to approach my subject from the point of view of those who wish to start a new Contributory Scheme and to deal in the course of my remarks with some of the points which will arise for consideration.

The first point to be settled is who should be the primary beneficiaries. Should the Scheme be for the particular benefit of one hospital or should it extend to all the hospitals in a given area? The answer must necessarily vary with the circumstances and should be governed to a large extent by the nature of the hospital facilities in the area proposed to be tapped. A Contributory Scheme should aim at directly benefiting all the voluntary hospitals which normally serve its contributors, including those hospitals which are actually outside the area in which the contributors work. A Scheme which covered the whole country might be ideal from that point of view, but it would lose the great advantages which arise from local interest in local institutions. It is always easier to raise money for a definite local object than for a national object.

The Scheme should then aim at covering an area which in the main is self-sufficient as regards the hospital needs of the possible contributors in that area; but in all areas, even in those embracing one or more hospitals having medical schools, there will be a certain number of contributors requiring special treatment for which no facilities are available within the area, and it is only equitable that the Scheme should treat with generosity the outside hospitals to which such cases are sent and should not limit its payment to the standard charge made by the hospital to individual patients. The payment should take into account not only the cost of maintenance of the particular case but the general overhead expenses which the hospital incurs in maintaining the medical resources necessary for the treatment of its patients.

This question of the area of a Contributory Scheme deserves very careful consideration by the promoters, and in that connection a pamphlet which the Merseyside Hospitals Council has circulated in districts around Liverpool contains a review by Dr. Hetherington, Vice-Chancellor of Liverpool University, which is of more than local interest. After pointing out that the deficit "met by the Liverpool hospitals in respect of services to patients from outside areas during 1929 amounted to more than £16,000" and that an increasing part of the income of these hospitals is being found by the contributors to the local Scheme, the pamphlet goes on to say: "These contributors, therefore, are paying part of the cost of the hospital maintenance of people in much the same economic situation as themselves. And because of the insufficiency of beds in the Liverpool hospitals the medical treatment of some local contributors has to be deferred on account of the presence in the Liverpool hospitals of non-contributors from outside. There is here, clearly, an element of unfairness, which may easily operate to the detriment of this new effort to improve both the finances and the medical efficiency of the Liverpool hospitals. But it is very clearly recognised that the way to remedy it is not by closing the Liverpool hospitals to 'outside' patients . . . but in bringing them, somehow, within the scope of the Contributory Fund."

Where the local area is extensive but not self-sufficient, there is much to be said for a separate local Scheme affiliated to the Contributory Scheme operating in the medical metropolis of the region. If the contributors to a Scheme enable the associated hospitals to balance ordinary income and ordinary expenditure (including the cost of maintenance of those who cannot reasonably be expected to become contributors) they may fairly expect that non-contributors in a similar economic situation to themselves shall pay their proper share of that total expenditure. This implies that the hospitals associated with the Scheme should adopt some standard rate of charge for non-contributors. Four or five shillings a day does not seem unreasonable where the individual is himself responsible, but the charge should be nearer the actual cost of maintenance—perhaps seven shillings a day—where he has a Fund at his back, whether it be some sick fund in connection with his employers or a fund like the Hospital Saving Association.

The Contributory Fund promoted by the directors and employees of the L.M.S. Railway has proved a wonderful example of what can be done by skilful organisation, goodwill and unselfish service in the interests of voluntary hospitals, and the contribution which the L.M.S. Hospital Fund has made to voluntary hospital finance has been very welcome. A central fund of this kind is probably best suited to the special circumstances of railway employment where the employees of one concern are scattered all over the country, but apart from special funds of that description it is important that in each separate area there should be only one Contributory Scheme, and that, the one best suited to the local conditions. Whilst recognising the help which the Hospital Saving Association is giving to voluntary hospitals, it is to be feared that the structure of that Association, based as it is on the individual and ignoring his employer and his abode, might cause considerable embarrassment if the Association were to canvass for members in a provincial area which was attempting to run its own Scheme.

For determining the proper territorial limits of the various Schemes and for dealing with other questions of more than local concern, it might be considered whether some form of national conference of Contributory Schemes would not be useful.

From what has been said as to areas it is evident that an individual hospital is seldom the appropriate body to run a Contributory Scheme. That body (which for brevity I will refer to as the Council), should be representative of the contributors and of all the voluntary hospitals within the area, and should also contain others whose interest and influence is valuable, such as representatives of the local authorities, of organised labour, of employers' associations, and of the medical staffs of the hospitals and of the general practitioners.

This Council must then determine in consultation with the hospitals and with the medical profession what privileges it will give to contributors and what rate of contribution will be necessary to secure the desired improvement in the finances of the hospitals, remembering that there will always be a large number of patients who are non-contributors and who can afford little or nothing towards the cost of their maintenance.

As to the privileges, it is important to preserve the position that admission to hospital is governed solely by medical considerations and that no priority can be given to contributors. All that the hospitals themselves can safely promise is that regular contributors will not be asked for any payment towards the cost of their maintenance whilst in hospital either as in-patients or as out-patients, and will consequently be freed from almoners' enquiries. This privilege is usually extended also to dependent members of the contributor's family.

In practice it is difficult to avoid adding other inducements which attract contributors but which, unfortunately, do not directly benefit the voluntary hospitals for whose benefit the Scheme is primarily intended—such as freeing the contributor from the whole or part of any expenses which he may incur for ambulance transport, home helps, spa treatment, surgical appliances, convalescent treatment, home nursing, special nourishment, and other forms of after-care. Unless strict control is kept over "side-lines" of this kind, they will rapidly absorb a not inconsiderable portion of the funds intended for the voluntary hospitals. They should only be available on medical certificate of necessity and where their provision tends towards more efficient use of the beds in voluntary hospitals. It is hardly fair to leave the decision as to medical necessity to the family doctor, and in order to secure uniformity it is generally advisable to require that the certificates shall be given by a medical referee appointed by the Council. These "side-lines" are undoubtedly popular; they have an advertising value, and if so safeguarded that they do not absorb more than five or ten per cent. of the funds raised by the Scheme their provision is probably a sound proposition from the point of view of the net benefit to the funds of the voluntary hospitals.

Another direction in which the funds of Contributory Schemes are liable to go away from their primary object is in repayment of charges made to a contributor who happens to be treated in a municipal (formerly poor law) hospital. The extent to which contributory Schemes should accept responsibility in such cases is one of the most difficult and expensive problems which has to be faced by promoters, and the difficulties are likely to increase with the removal of the poor law taint and the improvement in the standard of equipment and service in the municipal hospitals. It is obvious that if a man who has contributed perhaps for years on the understanding that if he becomes a patient of the voluntary hospitals no charge will be made to him for his maintenance, finds himself in a municipal hospital owing to shortage of beds in the voluntary hospitals he will feel aggrieved when the Public Assistance Committee attempts to recover from him the cost of his maintenance, and it is hardly practicable for the Contributory Scheme to refuse all financial responsibility in such cases. On the other hand, the Scheme cannot be expected to accept liability unless the case is medically urgent and would have been admitted to a voluntary hospital if a bed had been vacant.

When the question of admissibility has been settled there remains the difficult problem of the amount of the liability. In the past, the Guardians have on the average only recovered very small sums from their patients, but when the patient has a large fund behind him they have felt legally bound to claim a much higher proportion of the cost of maintenance. Though there is some doubt whether it was lawful for the Guardians to compound their claims against the individual patients for a fixed rate of payment by a third party, several Contributory Schemes have made such arrangements in order to save contributors from enquiries as to their means by the Relieving Officer. The settlement of the appropriate rate has been a matter of considerable difficulty. On the one hand the Guardians have claimed that if they accepted from a Scheme the same rate as they have hitherto recovered from the average patient, this rate would be so much less than the cost in a voluntary hospital that there would be a tendency for voluntary hospitals to dump a large number of cases into the Union hospitals. On the other hand, promoters of Contributory Schemes have naturally maintained that as they have no legal liability for cases in Union hospitals they should not be asked to pay any more to the Guardians than the Guardians would in practice have been able to recover direct from the patient.

When the Local Government Bill was before Parliament last year the Government accepted an amendment of mine which now stands as a proviso to Clause 16 (1) of the 1929 Act, in the following terms :—

Provided that any such council or authority may, by agreement with the governing body of any association or fund established for the purpose of providing benefits to members of other beneficiaries thereof, accept from the association or fund, in respect of the expenses incurred by the council or authority in the maintenance of any member or beneficiary of the association or fund, payment of such sums as may be provided by the agreement, in lieu of recovering the whole or any part of the said expenses from the member or beneficiary, or from any person legally liable to maintain him.

Under this proviso the Public Assistance Committee has thus the power to contract with a Contributory Scheme, that, in lieu of attempting to recover the cost of maintenance from patients who are within the Scheme, the Public Assistance Committee will accept from the Scheme "such sums as may be provided by the agreement." It is to be noted that these sums need not be the whole cost of maintenance, and it is to be hoped that Public Assistance Committees will take advantage of this proviso and will give generous terms to Contributory Schemes and so assist indirectly in preserving the wonderful system of voluntary hospitals, the existence of which is of incalculable value to the community—and that not only from the point of view of the payer of rates and taxes.

It is important to limit the responsibility of Contributory Schemes in regard to contributors admitted to municipal hospitals to those cases which are medically urgent and for which no bed is available at a voluntary hospital. This would be made clear to the Public Assistance Committee and to the contributors, who should also understand that the Scheme accepts no responsibility for cases normally treated at public expense or not usually admitted to voluntary hospitals—such as tuberculosis, mental or infectious disease, chronic or incurable cases, ordinary maternity cases, children's ailments dealt with by the education authorities (e.g. tonsils, adenoids, ringworm, eye testing), war disabilities within the responsibility of the Ministry of Pensions, or the ordinary cases covered by the terms of service of general practitioners under the National Health Insurance Acts.

Those Acts have undoubtedly done much towards the prevention of serious illness by encouraging those who feel unwell to take medical advice at an early stage, and similarly, Contributory Schemes, by removing anxiety as to the payment of hospital charges or reluctance to accept charity, tend to avoid undesirable delay in seeking hospital treatment.

Whilst early treatment is desirable, it is important that every Contributory Scheme should have safeguards against unnecessary use of the costly equipment of voluntary hospitals or unreasonable trespass on the honorary services of the medical profession. The out-patient departments of voluntary hospitals should not be expected to provide elementary medical service to any who are in a position to secure it from the general practitioner by direct payment or by virtue of National Health Insurance.

A Contributory Scheme may quite properly decide that those who would normally be contributors but who are out of work and are so certified by the appropriate trade union should be entitled to contributors' privileges, but apart from these it is to the necessitous poor alone that the full facilities of the voluntary hospitals should be freely available.

To carry out this principle it seems essential to confine the ordinary hospital privileges of a Contributory Scheme to those who would normally be regarded by themselves and by the medical profession as proper subjects for treatment in the open wards of a voluntary hospital, and the most practicable way of doing this is by fixing income limits for contributors. The limits which have been adopted in a Scheme with which I am associated are :—

1. (a) Single person over 16 years of age; (b) widow or widower without children under 16 years of age—not more than £4 a week.
2. (a) Married couples without children; (b) persons with one dependant under 16 years of age—not more than £5 a week.
3. (a) Married couples with a child or children under 16 years of age; (b) persons with more than one dependant under 16 years of age—not more than £6 a week.

Doubtful cases are decided by a small committee consisting of a layman and a doctor, and, in general, the adoption of these limits cannot be said to have proved inequitable, though it undoubtedly has lost to the hospitals the contributions of many who would have been glad to contribute regularly whilst in health and employment if they could be relieved of financial anxiety as to possible expenses when themselves needing services of hospital type.

If any Scheme is made to cover such cases above a certain income limit it must in fairness to the medical profession provide reasonable remuneration for medical services. Time will not permit me to explore this question of Contributory Schemes for the middle classes. Suffice it to say that in order to justify the promotion of such a Scheme as a means of supporting voluntary hospitals the rate of contribution must be such as to leave a good surplus for the voluntary hospitals after providing fully on an actuarial basis for the benefits which the Scheme gives, and it is evident, that, except where pay-bed accommodation is available without encroaching on the beds available in the ordinary wards, many of these benefits are outside the ordinary province of a hospital. If income limits are to be avoided in such a Scheme, benefits should probably be confined to grants-in-aid, leaving professional remuneration to be settled between doctor and patient in the ordinary way. For certain classes of case, the Scheme might be able to arrange a fixed scale of fees for professional services—doctors and nurses—and for suitable “board and lodging” whether in a hospital pay-bed or in a nursing home. In these middle-class Schemes, it is only fair that the doctors should get, through the Scheme, at least as much as they would have got from the same patient outside the Scheme.

Turning again to the ordinary Contributory Schemes for wage earners of limited income, it must be remembered that the practice under which the remuneration of the honorary staff has not been in cash but has been solely by way of increase of experience, resulting in a higher standing in the profession and a consequent increase in earning capacity outside the hospital, came down from the days when treatment in hospitals was reserved for the indigent. It was considered something less desirable than treatment in one's own home.

The elaboration of modern methods of diagnosis and treatment, the recognition that the conditions in hospital are generally far more favourable to recovery than in the home, and the increased difficulty in making both ends meet, have all tended to bring into the voluntary hospitals an increasing proportion of the classes from which the budding specialists and consultants used to draw sufficient fees to enable them to work without remuneration in hospital. The effect on those who have attained the eminence of the senior honorary posts at large hospitals has certainly not been so great, but taking the honorary staffs as a whole, to ask them to continue to give gratuitous service under modern conditions is to my mind unreasonable. Nevertheless the profession have shown no signs of wishing to change their practice so long as the patient is an individual on whom fees for treatment would fall heavily; but the case is different when the party responsible is not an individual but is a solvent fund to which that individual has only paid a weekly contribution within his means. Under those circumstances it does not appear unreasonable that the honorary staffs should receive some tangible recognition of their undoubted services. If this principle is recognised, as I think it should be, it remains to determine when a Fund is to be regarded as solvent. The increasing complexities of hospital treatment tend to absorb increases of income, and it is difficult to say at any time that a Fund is solvent in the sense of meeting all the current requirements. Whilst it is true that the hospitals do not always reduce the size of their coats to suit the cloth, it is equally true that if the cloth permits, the size of the coats tends to increase.

In some cases the medical profession have put forward a claim for a tithe of the monies raised by Contributory Schemes, but I doubt whether in so doing they have appreciated the fact that the monies which a Scheme distributes to hospitals are not by any means entirely net gain in the total income of the hospitals. As a Scheme grows, patients' payments and direct subscriptions from employers are sure to fall. In a case within my knowledge, where a Scheme last year distributed more than £100,000 to the voluntary hospitals, the net gain in the hospitals' income was probably not more than £50,000. Probably the fairest plan, for the present at any rate, is to admit the principle of payments to Staff Funds and leave its application to be worked out in consultation with the hospital staffs according to the financial position of the hospitals from time to time.

A special problem arises in cottage hospitals, where it is generally the practice for the patient to be attended at his own expense by his own doctor. It then becomes necessary to make exceptions from the general rule that a contributor will be exempt from charges whilst in hospital. If the only associated hospitals are of this type, no complications will arise, but where cottage hospitals are in the minority it is difficult to explain the exception to contributors, and it may be found advisable for the Scheme to compound with the local doctors for any fees which they might have obtained from those who were not panel patients.

Many hospitals dependent on their own efforts keep records of the costs incurred in providing hospital service for the employees of different firms, and such a costing system has proved of great value in developing Contributory Schemes. By that means it can be brought home to an employer or group of employers or to a district how much it has cost the hospitals to serve patients from that source over and above any payments received from those patients or subscriptions from that source. In Merseyside, for instance, the costing system has established that the 22 associated hospitals make a loss of £16,000 a year in respect of patients from beyond a ten-mile radius of Liverpool; has shown the share of that loss belonging to each town; has proved that the cost of service to the members of Approved Societies last year was more than £70,000, towards which the Societies contributed less than £7,000, and has provided much other information of propaganda value.

There can be little doubt that the most economical and satisfactory way of collecting contributions is through the wage books by the kindness of the employer. Each contributor should sign an authority to his employer to pay his contributions weekly out of wages. The employer will pass on to the Scheme the contributions thus deducted and will generally agree to add a proportionate contribution on his own part—often one-third. In Merseyside, ninety per cent. of the contributors subscribe through their place of employment and £108,000 was actually collected last year through the pay-offices by the kind co-operation of employers.

There is still a large group of potential hospital patients which cannot be covered by the industrial organisation of collection through the pay-office. I refer to the unattached workers, small traders, retired persons, domestic servants, small craftsmen and the like. These can be catered for by the formation of district committees to run receiving depots in every street if necessary, in order that every unattached worker may have the opportunity of paying his contribution at a depot within a few yards of his residence. To prevent abuse it is useful to stipulate that a contributor joining as an individual shall not be entitled to the privileges of membership till after six months of contribution or when his contributions are much in arrear.

Now let us consider briefly what income a Contributory Scheme may reasonably expect to have and how it is likely to be spent. In 1922, from an analysis of several Schemes I estimated that a Contributory Scheme should easily produce an income equivalent to at least five shillings a year per head of the insured population in its area. Subsequent experience has confirmed this estimate. In Merseyside there are approximately half a million insured persons, and, after three years' work, the Scheme has secured a quarter of a million contributors and has an income of £125,000 a year.

Administrative expenses tend to be heavy in any large Scheme, especially during the period of establishment, and rapid development requires considerable expenditure on propaganda. In the early years, an allowance of ten per cent. of income for these purposes is not unreasonable, but it should be possible later to get this down to five per cent. I have already suggested that it is probably an economic proposition to spend five or ten per cent. on side-shows which attract contributors. Payment for contributors in municipal hospitals is likely to be another drain on the funds in some areas. In Merseyside this has taken more than a tenth of the income, which certainly seems too high a proportion. Then there may be some payment to medical staff funds: an allowance of five per cent. of the monies paid to the voluntary hospitals would not seem unreasonable.

After all these deductions, the amount available for the voluntary hospitals will be something less than three-quarters of the total receipts. In the distribution of this balance the Council will do well to bind itself to follow the recommendations of a small special committee of men of standing not directly associated with particular hospitals. Some elasticity in the basis of distribution is desirable, but the chief factors should be the extent of the services rendered to contributors, the needs of the institution and the use which it makes of its funds.

In my judgment, Contributory Schemes will continue to grow, and the problems concerning their effect on the medical profession are amongst the most important of those which call for early solution. Delay in evolving a settled policy results in local settlements along divergent lines without full consideration of all the consequences and tends to aggravate the problem.

As the outcome of the Annual Conference of The British Hospitals Association the Council agreed to draw up a draft policy with a view to helping those engaged in Voluntary Hospital work to adopt some method of uniformity in contributory methods. In order that the widest possible expression of views might be obtained two important steps were taken—the Management Committee of the Birmingham Hospitals Contributory Scheme convened a conference of Contributory Schemes at Birmingham on 5th November for the dual purpose of debating some of the problems which had grown up with the growth of contributory methods and of forming an association of Contributory Schemes for mutual help and for the exchange of information.

At this Conference, which was attended by some 50 delegates, it was considered that it was more economical in administration, more thorough in organisation, would not affect local enthusiasm and would result in a more equitable distribution of funds, for all hospitals in agreed territorial spheres of influence to co-operate in a common Contributory Scheme.

It was also agreed that the governing body of the Contributory Scheme should be representative of as many interests as possible, as, for example, Voluntary Hospitals, Municipal Authorities, Universities, Honorary Medical Staffs, General Practitioners, Associations of Employers, Associations of Employees and the general body of Contributors.

No definite conclusion was arrived at with regard to income limit, but the general feeling was that it was a disadvantage to fix a definite line. Nor was any agreement arrived at with regard to the giving of assistance to those contributors who receive treatment in private wards.

Co-operation between Contributory Schemes was agreed to in principle, and a resolution was carried in general terms. It was also decided to send out a questionnaire to ascertain the practice of the various schemes.

With regard to payments to Public Assistance Committees from contributory schemes, various views were expressed; at Birmingham there was a flat rate of £1 per case; at Liverpool the total amount paid amounted to £12,000, at the rate of 10s. 8d. per week; at Sheffield there was a refund of the charges of Municipal Authorities, the patient being assessed on an economic basis. The Hospital Saving Association paid to the Public Assistance Authorities £38,000, the basis of payment being the assessable value of the patient. The point of view was also expressed that it was no good asking a man to pay 3d. a week if he could go to a city hospital for nothing. It was also stated that the view had been expressed that there might be a danger of the Voluntary Hospitals dumping their patients on the Municipal.

It was also generally agreed that in fairness to regular Contributors, non-contributors should be asked to pay for treatment by the hospital, basing the charge on their ability to pay.

With regard to the provision of certain auxiliary services, such as Convalescence, After-care Treatment, Ambulance Transport, etc., it was felt that this provision was desirable, subject to a percentage limitation.

At this conference an Association of Contributory Schemes was formed, and a sub-committee was appointed with power to draft rules and regulations.

A Second Meeting of The British Hospitals Association, to which representatives of contributory schemes were invited, was held at the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, on the 18th Nov., 1930, at which the following outline of the position generally was placed before those present.

Contributory methods can most easily be considered under the following headings and in the following order ; both headings and order are the outcome of some thought.

1. The Contributor ;
2. The Benefit ;
3. The Contribution ;
4. The Distributing Organisation ;
5. The Recipient.

To-day there is no agreement of any kind whatever with regard to any one of these headings.

Taking them in order, the following are some of the chief views held :—

The Contributors.—Who are they ? What classes do they cover ? In some areas they are those whose income does not exceed a certain figure ; in another area there is no income limit, only an implication that the contributors belong to the class that ordinarily uses hospitals. In a third area there is no income limit for the contributor who is a manual worker—there is for the non-manual contributor.

The Benefit.—Here there is the widest possible divergence of view. In some areas there is an implied benefit, although the contribution is a periodical gift and conveyed to the hospital as a gift, the amount being determined upon the basis of the number of contributors treated. In other areas the contribution is paid in expectation of certain benefits (qualified by certain conditions). In a third the contribution is paid certainly as much to help the hospital as to help the individual contributor who pays it.

In some places there is a ld. in the £ scheme, in another weekly deduction from wages, in a third contributions of an irregular and somewhat spasmodic character are included in contributory moneys. There is one important point to remember, viz., that the amounts raised, whether by contributory, or closely allied methods, are being more and more related to the cost of treatment of contributory patients. Such comparisons cannot fail to tend to raise the contribution until amounts collected approximate the cost of treatment, i.e. until an actuarial basis is reached.

The Distributing Organisation.—Again there is no agreement, indeed there is the strongest possible disagreement. One view is that a Contributory Scheme should be organised by an individual hospital even if that hospital associates with itself the smaller hospitals in its area. In such a scheme all the money raised by contributory methods in that area goes to the hospital or hospitals. Another view is that Contributory Schemes, even where resting on one hospital, or mainly upon one hospital, should be organised and run by an outside body, which body should make payments or gifts to the hospital, or hospitals, but should also devote a portion of its funds to other services such as Convalescent Homes, Ambulance, etc. A third view is that a scheme should be organised by an independent body based partly upon a group of hospitals and partly upon other organisations in its area, the distribution of money being by way of payment or gifts to hospitals and other organisations. A fourth view is that a scheme should be run by an independent body and based upon such hospitals only as are willing to agree to certain conditions.

Recipients.—In one case the recipient is the individual hospital which takes all, irrespective of whether the amount is less, equal to, or more than the cost of treating contributors. In another the recipients are the hospital with its associated hospitals, again irrespective of the relationship between the amount raised and the cost of treating contributors. In a third instance the recipients are the hospitals in the area of the scheme together with Convalescent Homes, Ambulance, etc. In a fourth the recipients are the Hospitals, Convalescent Homes, Ambulance, etc., a percentage of the amount going to the Medical Staff giving treatment.

Such in broadest outline, are the methods which the Voluntary Hospitals have to consider.

Some 1000 questionnaires were in consequence issued in December, 1930, to which a very large number of replies has been received. The labour involved in the summarising of this mass of information upon an extremely complicated matter has prevented a Memorandum from being prepared in time for publication in this book. The result of this labour will be that those upon whom will devolve the task of drawing up a policy for the guidance of the Voluntary Hospital will be able to do so with the fullest possible knowledge of all the facts.

In connection with this important subject the following Memorandum has been prepared by Mr. W. H. B. Mellows and adopted by The Medical Advisory Committee of the Charity Organisation Society.

Ten years ago the financial position of the voluntary hospitals was critical. Their receipts had not fallen off—in fact, they had increased—but the cost of provisions, drugs, dressings, fuel and labour had grown to such an extent as to more than counterbalance the increase of income. As was stated in the final report of the Cave Committee, published in May, 1921: “The position of a large number of hospitals is such as to make it improbable that they can be continued on a voluntary basis unless prompt and vigorous measures are taken to re-establish the position of 1914.” The hospitals had already received from the National Relief Fund a large grant towards their war deficits, and in London there had been an emergency distribution from the reserve capital of King Edward’s Hospital Fund.

As the result of the report of the Cave Committee, the Government made a temporary grant of £500,000 (half the sum recommended by the Committee) to the hospitals of Great Britain. This grant and the money raised by the hospitals themselves by means of special appeals, etc., tided over the immediate difficulties, but it was recognised that if the voluntary system was to survive, a new source of substantial and regular help must be found.

The practice of asking hospital patients, where in a position to do so, to contribute towards the cost of their maintenance, had by then become almost general, and in London the income from that source had increased from £78,000 in 1913 to £230,000 in 1920. This system could be looked to to provide a certain amount of regular income, but what was wanted was something equally certain but of greater amount. It was at this juncture that the hospitals turned for help to their potential patients, the members of the working classes. The idea was not a new one, as hospital collections from wage-earners had been in force in many districts for over fifty years, and had been very successful in the North.

One of the first to realise the possibilities of this source of income in the post-war emergency was the late Sir Napier Burnett, who, speaking at Birmingham in September, 1920, said: “What the hospitals require is to supplement the appeal to the ordinary subscriber by a stream, a regular stream, not a spasmodic thing, a regular stream of weekly collections from the employees of the factories, workshops and business houses, and in like manner, guaranteed amounts from the employers. . . . The work-people generally are willing to adopt this form of voluntary levy, but the hospitals must create the necessary machinery for its collection.” He went on to give figures showing the enormous variation (from £1 to £51 per annum per available bed) in the sums received from workmen’s contributions (direct and through Hospital Saturday Funds) by each of sixteen hospitals in industrial areas. He pointed out the great need there was for organisation in many districts. What could be achieved by organisation is illustrated by the experience of Glasgow, where in 1920 an intensive effort was made to increase the revenue from working-class contributions. The result was an increase in the income from that source from £54,300 in 1919 to £102,166 in 1921.

How best to organise “a regular stream” of weekly collections was the question. The results already attained in many districts were the fruits of years of propaganda and much hard work, and what was wanted was some scheme that would show an immediate return. The solution was found by the late Dr. J. Gordon Dill, who founded the Sussex Provident Scheme for Hospital Benefits, the first of the hospital contributory schemes as we know them to-day. The key-note of the scheme was co-operation: the hospitals and those who looked to them in time of sickness co-operated to the mutual advantage of both. It was open to all residents of Sussex whose incomes fell within certain limits, and in return for a regular weekly or yearly contribution, the hospitals co-operating in the scheme undertook to provide contributors and their dependents with free hospital treatment and maintenance when it was needed. The contributions were to be distributed to the co-operating hospitals after a small deduction for the expenses of administration and certain special services. The scheme has since been redrafted, but the principle remains unchanged.

It was from this beginning that has been evolved the hospital contributory scheme as we know it to-day. It must be noted, however, that in many districts, particularly in the North, the collections from wage-earners are still organised on a purely philanthropic basis, the contributors being entitled to no special privileges.

The modern contributory scheme, whilst still emphasising the claims of the voluntary hospitals, insists more and more upon the benefits offered to contributors. To free hospital maintenance and treatment have been added various auxiliary benefits, such as convalescent treatment, free use of ambulance, the supply of dentures and optical and surgical appliances on special terms, and even, in some cases, free maintenance in a public assistance hospital where no bed is available at a voluntary hospital. It is little to be wondered at that at a recent conference the question was asked whether schemes exist for the benefit of the hospitals or for the benefit of the contributors.

The growth of these schemes has been phenomenal. The total income of the hospitals of England and Wales (excluding London) from workmen's contributions, hospital Saturday funds and contributory schemes, increased from £25 per available bed in 1920 to £39 in 1928. The figures for Scotland for the same years were £22 and £30, respectively. In London, the Hospital Saving Association, which was founded in 1922, now has a membership of 810,000 and an income which is rapidly approaching £500,000. The Birmingham scheme has 412,000 contributors, and last year distributed £175,000 to local hospitals. Sheffield, one of the first of the big joint schemes run by a group of hospitals, has 220,000 contributors, and distributed £88,770. On Merseyside, the penny-in-the-£ scheme, which was inaugurated only in 1927, already has 245,000 contributors, and in 1929 distributed £93,000 to the voluntary hospitals of the district. A big scheme not attached to any particular hospital or group of hospitals is that of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway Hospital Fund: the members of the fund number 240,000, or about 88 per cent. of those in the active service of the company; each member contributes 3*d.* per week, and for every 3*d.* so given the Company adds 1*d.* Generally, the aim of the fund is to pay to the hospitals a sum of fifty shillings per week in respect of the maintenance of each in-patient member, together with the cost of out-patient charges. In 1929, the sum of £120,495 was paid to hospitals and kindred institutions.

With the growth of schemes has come a demand for some unified policy, and a conference of representatives of nineteen different schemes was held at Birmingham in November last, at which various questions were considered and discussed. Later in the same month a similar conference was convened in London by The British Hospitals Association. The Association has sent out a questionnaire with a view to eliciting information as to the details of existing schemes, and hopes to be in a position later to issue a Memorandum which may help to promote some measure of uniformity in this method of raising funds. At present there is a complete lack of uniformity not only as to details, which, of course, vary according to local conditions, but also as to general principles.

ORGANISATION.

Areas vary largely. Some schemes are attached to a single hospital, others to a group of hospitals in a well-defined industrial centre, and there are also schemes which cover a county or portion of a county. Agricultural areas have proved a particularly difficult problem, but it has been overcome successfully in many cases. Oxfordshire and parts of the neighbouring counties have been well organised by the Radcliffe Infirmary through the medium of local committees, and the Dorset County Hospital has a similar scheme. The south-western counties are well served with schemes, and there is a Wessex Association of Hospital Leagues for the promotion of co-operation between the associated leagues. At Lincoln there are two schemes, one for the city and one for the county. Under the latter, hospital associations have been formed in towns and villages throughout the county, and each undertakes to raise a minimum contribution to the County Hospital; the method of raising funds is left to the discretion of the local association. The East Suffolk and Ipswich Hospital was the first to introduce the principle of contributions by farm workers: the basis of the scheme is a contribution of a penny per week from each farm labourer and a penny per week from the farmer. It is of interest to note that where, owing to the present agricultural depression, farmers have been unable to keep up their contributions, the men are in many cases paying the twopence themselves.

In industrial areas many schemes are no longer confined to ordinary wage-earners; special provision is made for the small shopkeeper or trader and for domestic servants, pensioners, etc.

In some cases the scheme is organised by a hospital itself or by a group of hospitals combined for the purpose. In other districts the organisation and administration are undertaken by a special association independent of the hospitals. The British Medical Association favours the latter method on the ground that it is undesirable for hospitals to undertake any insurance risk, i.e. undertake to provide hospital benefit when required in return for a periodic payment by an individual or group of individuals.

INCOME LIMITS FOR CONTRIBUTORS.

The British Medical Association has suggested the following scale for contributors: All persons insured under the National Health Insurance Acts and their dependents; also other persons whose income does not exceed the following scale (subject to economic and local variations and to periodic revisions): £4 per week, single persons over 16 years and widows or widowers without children under 16 years; £5 per week, married couples without children under 16 years and persons with one dependent under 16 years; £6 per week, married couples with a child or children under 16 years and persons with more than one dependent under 16 years.

Many schemes have adopted this scale, some with slight variations; some have a limit for non-manual but none for manual workers; yet again, others have no defined income limit. In the latter cases it is usually implied, if not definitely stated, that the benefits of the scheme are open only to what may be described as persons belonging to the hospital class.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

There is great variety here. In some cases there is a flat rate of 1*d.*, 2*d.* or 3*d.* per week or on the basis of a penny-in-the-£ of wages. Elsewhere, contributions are graded according to whether the contributor is single or married, or with or without dependents. At Hull there is a special rate for casual workers in the docks.

DEPENDENTS.

Dependents of contributors are usually entitled to the benefits of a scheme, in some cases in return for an additional contribution, but there is some variety as to who may be classed as dependent. The age for dependent children is sometimes limited to 14 years, and sometimes to 16 years. Other schemes include all persons entirely dependent on the contributor.

BENEFITS.

Contributors are as a rule entitled to free maintenance and treatment on admission as in-patients and to free out-patient service. It is usual, however, to except ordinary maternity cases and such cases as fall to be dealt with by a local authority. It was at one time feared that the growth of contributory schemes would result in the flooding of out-patient departments by cases of trivial illness, but this has been guarded against in many schemes by a rule that except in cases of emergency, a contributor applying for hospital treatment must produce a certificate from his own doctor. Hospital benefit is confined in some cases to the hospital or hospitals co-operating in the scheme, but it is becoming common to pay maintenance charges up to a fixed maximum (usually three shillings per day) where a contributor as the result of accident or emergency is admitted to an outside hospital. Another recent development is the practice of paying maintenance charges when contributors are admitted to poor law hospitals, it being made a condition that the case is one which would normally be admitted to a voluntary hospital were a bed available. This latter concession is, of course, a great advantage to a contributor, but it is difficult to see how it benefits the voluntary hospital.

Convalescent treatment is commonly given as an auxiliary benefit. This was always a prominent benefit with some of the older Hospital Saturday Funds, some of which maintain their own homes, and it was at one time complained that too much money was spent on convalescence as compared with the sums contributed to the hospitals. Free use of ambulance is provided in many instances, and other additional benefits are grants towards the cost of dentures and optical and surgical appliances, spa treatment and home nursing through a local nursing association. Many schemes limit the amount to be spent on these additional privileges to a certain percentage (from 5 to 15 per cent.) of the sum received in contributions.

METHODS OF COLLECTION.

These vary a great deal. The simplest and surest is by deductions from wages, and where this system is in force it is usual for the employer to add a percentage to the sum contributed by his employees. Other methods are by a collector appointed by the work-people in a workshop or factory, by local collecting committees, and in some cases by means of special stamps affixed to cards. In one seaside town there is a system of house boxes by means of which householders of moderate means are enabled to share in the benefits of the scheme on undertaking to make a minimum weekly contribution. Under this latter scheme, domestic servants of the contributor are classed as his dependents.

PAYING WARDS.

A very interesting development is the extension of the contributory principle to persons with incomes above those of the ordinary hospital class. Some schemes offer contributors to their ordinary scheme the privilege of admission to paying wards at a reduced rate (usually at 25 per cent. below the ordinary charge), but, in addition, a few hospitals have special schemes for their paying wards. At the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, for instance, a payment of £1 10s. a year entitles a contributor and his dependents to free nursing and maintenance in the private patients' department (the normal fee is four guineas per week). A similar scheme is in operation at the Yeatman Hospital, Sherborne, the contributions being two guineas a year for husband, wife and all dependent children; where there are no children, the contribution is £1 11s. 6d. a year; for a single person it is one guinea. Both schemes include certain special out-patient treatments.

THE FUTURE.

Hospital contributory schemes are growing, in spite of the present industrial depression, and the limit is not yet in sight. Some districts are as yet unorganised on the intensive lines that have proved so successful in Birmingham, Sheffield, Liverpool and elsewhere. In the counties of Northumberland and Durham, £130,000 was contributed last year from working people on the voluntary principle, and it is estimated that this sum could be largely increased if the collections could be organised on a common basis. Again, Scotland has not yet adopted the new principle, although, of course, there are large collections from wage-earners on the old voluntary system.

As schemes grow, and as new ones arise, many new problems will have to be faced, and not the least difficult will be the question of the payment of medical staffs. This question has arisen in many districts already, and various arrangements have been made for payments to the medical staff funds of certain hospitals, either by means of a per capita payment for patients treated or on the basis of a percentage of the sum received by the hospital from contributors.

Another problem likely to arise is the method of distribution of contributions. At the Birmingham conference mentioned above, there was a discussion as to whether distribution shall be on the basis of the cost of services to contributors or on the financial needs of the hospitals and "the use of funds placed at their disposal." No decision was reached, but the latter part of the question is significant. Contributors are already represented on the boards of management of many hospitals. Are contributory schemes now to take on the rôle of a central collecting body like King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, and make grants only to those hospitals which reach a certain standard of excellence?

HOSPITALS AND THE SUPPLY OF DRUGS TO INSURED PATIENTS.

AN interesting point in connection with Hospitals and National Health Insurance is brought out in a Memorandum published in the "British Medical Journal" of 28th March, 1931, from which the following is extracted. This extract has been submitted to the Ministry of Health and is believed to correctly interpret the law.

At a recent meeting of the Insurance Acts Committee an interesting question was discussed which has arisen owing to the application (so far unsuccessful) made by a voluntary hospital to an insurance committee for the inclusion of its name in the list of chemists of the area who have undertaken the supply of medicines and appliances to insured persons. The hospital has secured incorporation as a limited liability company, with permission to omit the word "Limited" from its title, and, it is understood, will renew this application when the word "Limited" has been added in its title. The inclusion of the hospital in the Chemists' List would superficially appear to be nothing more than a legal matter having only an indirect effect upon the medical profession. The hospital in question, however, contends that it is spending large sums of money on the provision of treatment (including medicines) for in-patients and out-patients to which these persons are properly entitled under the National Health Insurance Act, and which should therefore be a charge against National Health Insurance funds, a contention to which considerable publicity has been given in the lay press. In view of the confusion that appears to exist on this aspect of the matter, it has been thought well to set forth the following statement of the situation affecting the treatment of insured persons at hospitals other than insured members of the staffs thereof :

A. If a hospital has a restricted visiting medical staff (as in the hospital in question) no insured person is entitled to any treatment at the hospital qua insured person, nor is any member of such staff, who is also an insurance practitioner, entitled to treat at the hospital any patient qua insured person. It follows, therefore, that a voluntary hospital with a restricted visiting medical staff is never called upon to dispense for any in- or out-patient any medicine or appliance to which the patient is entitled under the National Health Insurance Acts.

If a voluntary hospital with a restricted visiting medical staff considers that it is spending a considerable amount of money on drugs and treatment to which the recipients thereof are entitled under the National Health Insurance Acts : (a) it should refer to their insurance doctors all patients (whether in- or out-patients) for treatment which they are entitled to receive under the N.H.I. medical benefit, and (b) it must realise that if this course is not adopted it is not possible to contend that money spent on treatment or drugs given or furnished to such persons at the hospital is money spent on treatment or drugs to which such persons are entitled under the N.H.I. Acts.

B. In the case of a voluntary hospital with an unrestricted visiting medical staff a different set of circumstances arises.

Any member of an unrestricted visiting medical staff of a voluntary hospital who is also an insurance practitioner is in the same position as regards the treatment (including the prescribing of medicines and appliances) of any insured person who applies to him at the hospital for a service included in his present contract with the Insurance Committee as if the patient had attended at his surgery, provided that the hospital is within the district in which the practitioner has agreed with the local insurance committee to visit patients. For such cases seen at the hospital the doctor would write out any necessary prescription on the usual National Health Insurance form, and the patient, being entitled to free choice of chemist for the dispensing, might choose the hospital dispensary if on the Chemists' List for the area, or he might choose to go to some other chemist in the area.

C. A voluntary hospital whose name is included in an insurance committee's list of those supplying drugs and appliances, is in the same position as any other chemist on that list ; it will be compelled to dispense the prescriptions brought to it by any insured person issued by an insurance doctor ; it must conform to the arrangements as regards the hours and place of business, etc., in operation in the area which apply to other chemists on the list ; and it will not be able to limit its dispensing, even if it is so desired, to its own in-patients or out-patients.

THE RED CROSS AND ORDER OF ST. JOHN HOSPITAL LIBRARY.

THE Hospital Library, at 48 Queen's Gardens, London, W.2, was known in its early days as the War Library. At the beginning of the War, before the need of books for men in hospital had been definitely expressed, Mrs. Gaskell, C.B.E., anticipated the need, and with the help of Mr. Hagberg Wright of the London Library, developed a scheme by which an immense library was built up, and housed in Surrey House (lent by Lady Battersea). Books, given by the public, poured in, and were also bought in large numbers. - All through the War, they were sent to every area where there were British hospitals, about 6,000,000 books and magazines being distributed.

After the first few months, the work was financed by the British Red Cross Society. At the end of the War, requests that the book service should not be stopped were so urgent that the Joint Council of the British Red Cross Society and Order of St. John made a grant of £25,000 to be used primarily for supplying literature to ex-service men's hospitals, and in this way the War Library became the Hospital Library for peace time.

Before long, however, an increasing number of ex-service men took their places again in civilian life, and if they fell ill were sent to civil hospitals. And with that change, the demand for books came from many civil hospitals, so that to-day over 2000 hospitals of all kinds are being supplied with a wide variety of literature—preference always being given to ex-service-men's institutions.

Alongside this development, medical opinion has begun to emphasise the therapeutic value of reading for hospital patients, and to urge that gifts of books to any hospital should go to form a central library for the patients, and that the library should be in charge of a librarian (usually a suitable voluntary worker), who should be assisted by other volunteers in the distribution of books in the wards. Contact between the book and the patient who needs it can be made in this way.

At the Empire Red Cross Conference in May 1930, and at the annual conference of the Royal Institute of Public Health in June 1930, resolutions were adopted to the effect that a well-selected library for patients should form part of the necessary equipment of every hospital. A similar resolution was passed at the Public Health Congress held in the Royal Agricultural Hall in Nov. 1930, with an additional clause, "that wherever possible this library service should be undertaken by those who have a knowledge of books and sympathy with human nature."

With the growth of medical opinion, and the extension of this service, two salient facts stand out,

- (1) the need for a method of decentralisation in order to increase efficiency and to enable supervision;
- (2) the inadequacy of present funds to meet the expenses of extra freight and office work in an extended service.

The first of these facts was tackled at the annual conference of the Library Association, held in Cambridge in September 1930. The following resolution was adopted; and time only is required to allow public librarians and hospital authorities to evolve a workable scheme along those lines—in some districts, at any rate.

Resolution :

This Meeting, while appreciating the devoted work of the British Red Cross Society & Order of St. John Hospital Library, believes this to be a public responsibility beyond the unaided powers of any single voluntary organisation : and

(1) Urges upon Hospital authorities the therapeutic and social importance of providing properly chosen libraries for patients, and the necessity for the control of such libraries by trained professional librarians;

(2) Calls the attention of the Library Association to this section of the community which is as yet unprovided with any adequate library service; and recommends that

(3) The Council of the Library Association be requested to appoint a Committee to consider and report upon the subject.

Meanwhile, a special Committee has been appointed by the Hospital Library Committee to consider co-operation with public libraries, and decentralisation. In any event, the Hospital Library will remain the co-ordinating and guiding body, and will continue to supply certain kinds of hospitals.

It should be added that the interest of the Cambridge conference was increased by excellent papers read by delegates from Denmark and America, who gave valuable accounts of the hospital library systems in those countries.

In respect of fact (2), voluntary and municipal hospitals are being asked to support the Hospital Library on the basis of £1 1s. per annum for hospitals under 100 beds, and £2 2s. for those over 100 beds. The London County Council has given a splendid lead by making a grant on this basis for all its hospitals. If this example is followed all over the country, a permanent Hospital Library Service will be assured, in place of the present service, which without this support will inevitably be merely a temporary organisation.* It should be remembered that the books are free gifts from the public, but their freight and the office expenses have to be maintained. Moreover, the movement is an international one, and British hospitals must at least keep in line with those of certain other countries.

INCORPORATION UNDER THE COMPANIES ACT, 1929.

UNDER Section 18 of the Companies Act, 1929, any Chamber, Institute, Society, or other Association about to be formed for the purpose of promoting commerce, art, science, religion, charity, or any other useful object which prohibits the division of profit among its members, may, if it obtains the Licence of the Board of Trade, be incorporated by registration under the Companies Acts with limited liability, but without the addition of the word "limited" to its name.

An Association desiring to be incorporated in this manner should make a written application to the Board of Trade for a Licence, and, together with such application, should transmit for consideration a draft in duplicate of the proposed Memorandum of Association and Articles of Association, a list of the promoters and proposed governing body, and an estimate of the income (with the sources from which it will be derived) and expenditure of the proposed Association.

If there is an unincorporated body, copies of the accounts and balance sheets for the last two years, and copies of any reports as to its working during that period, together with a statement showing in detail the assets (with estimated values) and liabilities to be taken over by the proposed Association, should also be forwarded. The application should also be supported by a statement giving an outline of the work done or in contemplation, with the grounds upon which the application is put forward.

If the Board of Trade are satisfied that the application may be entertained, they will furnish a notice of such application, to be inserted in a local newspaper for the information of the public, and if, after the expiration of a limited time, there appears to be no sufficient reason why the Licence should not be granted, the Board of Trade will accept the Memorandum and Articles of Association with such amendments, if any, as may be necessary, and grant a Licence.

The Board of Trade will require to have the Memorandum and Articles of Association settled on their behalf by Counsel, at the expense of the applicants, for which purpose a fee of £7 12s. must accompany the application, made payable to "The Assistant Secretary for Finance, Board of Trade." The Board of Trade will not, however, be responsible for the Memorandum or Articles being properly framed as regards the interests of the Association. No other fees or charges are payable to the Board of Trade, and the fees for registration of the Association may be ascertained by reference to Table II of the Tenth Schedule to the Companies Act, 1929.

THE FEDERATED SUPERANNUATION SCHEME FOR NURSES AND HOSPITAL OFFICERS (CONTRIBUTORY).

GENERAL BASIS OF THE SCHEME.

THE Scheme, which was launched on the 1st January, 1928, is framed on the general lines of the Federated Superannuation System of Universities, i.e., it is a contributory scheme whereby insurance policies are taken out for the individual employees, the annual premiums being based on a percentage of salary and emoluments, and paid partly by the employer and partly by the employee. All policies are taken out in the name of the Central Council as Grantee and Trustee, but Participating Institutions hold the policies effected in respect of their own employees.

CLASSES OF INSTITUTIONS INCLUDED IN THE SCHEME.

Institutions eligible to participate in the Scheme include the following :—

- (a) Voluntary Hospitals.
- (b) Consumption Sanatoria.

CLASSES OF OFFICERS AND NURSES INCLUDED IN THE SCHEME.

- (i) Officers. The Scheme includes all male and female members of the salaried staff, administrative, clerical, dispensing or massage, of eligible Institutions within the following range of remuneration, including emoluments.

- (a) Where the total of salary and emoluments is under £100 the officer is not eligible to join;
- (b) Where the total of salary and emoluments is £100 or over, but is under £160, the Institution has the option of admitting the officer if he wishes to join; if a new entrant officer is already a member of the Scheme it is compulsory for his membership to be continued;
- (c) Where the total salary and emoluments is £160 or over, it is compulsory (i.e. it is one of the terms of employment) for all new entrants into the service of a Participating Institution to join the Scheme, or to continue membership if already members;
- (d) There is no maximum pensionable salary limit, but it is permissible for any Institution to arrange with an individual officer that an increase in salary beyond a specified high level shall not carry with it any increase in the contribution of either the Institution or the officer, and consequently in the amount of pension. Any salary limit so arranged for the purposes of the Scheme is subject to the approval of the Executive of the Central Council.

- (ii) Nurses.

- (a) The Scheme includes all professional Nurses practising their profession: it is compulsory (i.e. it is one of the terms of employment) for all new entrants into the service of a Participating Institution to join the Scheme, or to continue membership if already members.

- (b) Probationers are eligible for membership at the end of their first year's training, but it is permissible for a Hospital to defer their admission to the Scheme until they have completed their training. It is compulsory for all new entrant probationers into the service of a Participating Hospital to join the Scheme at the end of which ever period the Hospital may have decided upon for their admission.
 - (c) In the case of Probationers or Nurses admitted to membership by Participating Children's or other special Hospitals, migrating to other Participating Hospitals for general training, it is compulsory for such Participating General Hospitals to continue the membership of such Probationers or Nurses from the date of engagement, whatever the decision of such General Hospitals may be in regard to the admittance of other new entrant Probationers.
- (iii) Part-time employees are not eligible to be included in the Scheme.
- (iv) Temporary employees of the classes mentioned in paragraphs (i) and (ii) above are not eligible for membership unless such employees are already members of the Scheme, when it is compulsory for the employing Participating Institution to continue their membership. In the case of new entrants, a period not exceeding six months may be regarded as temporary employment, at the option of both the Participating Institution and the individual.
- (v). General. The following are also included under the classification of Officers. If, however, trained Nurses fill any of these positions they are included as Nurses :—
- (a) Almoners.
 - (b) Pathological Laboratory Assistants not medically qualified.
 - (c) X-ray Operators.
 - (d) Senior Theatre Assistants.
 - (e) Radiographers.
 - (f) Technical Laboratory Assistants.
 - (g) Directors of Massage Departments (if lay persons).
 - (h) Masseuses and Masseurs.
 - (i) Laundry Superintendents and Linen Keepers.
 - (j) Dieticians.
 - (k) Engineers, provided they hold engineering qualifications and carry out duties which can be properly classified as Administrative.
 - (l) Wardmaids Mistresses (if the Participating Hospital desires to include them. Membership, however, is not compulsory).
 - (m) Housekeepers, provided their duties can be properly classified as Administrative (if the Participating Hospital desires to include them. Membership, however, is not compulsory).

V.D. Orderlies are eligible to join under the classification of Male Nurses if they hold an approved certificate or are ex-R.A.M.C. Orderlies.

If any doubt arises as to the eligibility for membership of individual employees, particulars should be submitted to the Executive of the Central Council, when each case will be considered on its merits.

Private Practice (Female Officers).

Masseuses who are not general trained nurses, admitted to the Scheme as Female Officers by a Participating Institution, are not allowed to continue their membership on migrating otherwise than into the service of an Eligible Institution.

OFFICERS AND NURSES IN THE EMPLOYMENT OF AN INSTITUTION AT THE DATE IT BRINGS THE SCHEME INTO OPERATION.

Existing Officers and Nurses, within the classes mentioned above, have the option of applying for admission to the Scheme, and Participating Institutions have the option of admitting them or otherwise. The Scheme applies to future service only. As regards back service it is suggested that the Institution promises either (a) that the member's pension shall not be less than it would have been had the Scheme not been established; or (b) that it shall not be less than a pension on the Old Service scale of 1859 (viz. one-sixtieth of the final salary and emoluments for each year of service up to forty-sixtieths); or (c) that it shall not be less than the pension that would have accrued under the Scheme if back premiums had been paid up.

CONTRIBUTIONS UNDER THE SCHEME.

- (i) The total contribution is 15 per cent. of salary and emoluments, payable as to 10 per cent. by the Participating Institution and as to 5 per cent. by the Officer or Nurse.
- (ii) Emoluments are valued for the purposes of the Scheme as follows:—

Officers: Lunch and tea, £30 per annum: full board and residence, on the merits of each individual case.

Nurses: Probationers and Nurses £50 per annum; Ward Sisters, £60; Home Sisters and Sister Tutors, £80; Assistant Matron, £80; Matron, £150.

(The emoluments of a Matron at a Branch Hospital or Convalescent Home of a Participating Institution may be valued at from £100 to £150 at the discretion of the Participating Institution. Hospitals containing under 25 beds have the option of valuing the emoluments of their Matrons at less than £150 per annum. If this option is exercised the reduced figure is subject to the approval of the Executive of the Central Council.)

The emoluments of Housekeepers (where included as Female Officers) may be valued for the purposes of the Scheme at £60 or £80 per annum at the discretion of the Participating Institution, according to the particular circumstances of each individual case.

FORMS OF BENEFIT.

- (i) Alternative classes of policies are available, namely:—
 - (a) Endowment assurance policies with or without participation in profits; or with guaranteed bonuses.
 - (b) Deferred annuity policies with guaranteed cash options and with (or without) return of premiums in the event of death or surrender.
- (ii) Each individual member has the right of selection of the class of benefit and insurance company.
- (iii) All policies are effected on the first day of the month. The annual premiums are paid by quarterly instalments, and the initial policy is effected immediately three full months' contributions (i.e. the amount of the first quarterly instalment of premium) are available. The "salary" (i.e. salary and emoluments) in respect of which the initial policy is effected is the basic "salary" for the purpose of determining the amount of the contributions and premiums.
- (iv) An increment policy is effected only in respect of an increase or increases on the basic "salary" totalling £20 or multiples of £10 in excess of £20 (i.e. £20, £30, £40, £50, etc.). Until the increases total £20, contributions by both the Institution and the member continue on the original rate of the basic "salary" and no increment policy is effected. Additional increment policies are taken out as and when the member's "salary" exceeds by £20 (or by multiples of £10 in excess of £20) the "salary" in respect of which policies have previously been effected. No increment policy may be effected at a lower premium than £3 per annum, i.e. 15 per cent. of £20. All increment policies must be effected on one of the four quarter days of the member's initial annual premium policy.

PENSION AGE.

Policies mature in the case of Male Officers at the age of 60, in the case of Female Officers at the age of 55 or 60 in accordance with the Regulations of the Institution concerned, in the case of Female Nurses at the age of 55, and in the case of Male Nurses at the age of 60. If an Officer's or Nurse's services are continued after the date of maturity of his or her policies, the prescribed contributions will continue to be made and will be paid quarterly to the relative Insurance Company to be accumulated with the capital monies of the policy at compound interest until the actual date of retirement.

MIGRATION WITHIN HOSPITAL OR NURSING SERVICE AT HOME OR ABROAD.

- (i) In the case of migration to join the salaried staff of another Participating Institution, the relative policy is forwarded to that Institution for future maintenance together with the contributions in hand (if any) calculated to the exact date that salary actually ceased.
- (ii) In all other cases, the policy and contributions in hand (if any) are forwarded to the Secretary to the Central Council, who negotiates the future maintenance of the policy until the member again joins the salaried staff of a Participating Institution.
- (iii) In the event of a Nurse migrating to practise her profession as a Private Nurse otherwise than at a fixed salary, the premium on her existing policy is adjusted to a uniform rate of £22 per annum subject to the following provisions :—
 - (a) If the premium on the existing policy is less than £22 per annum, the nurse has the option of maintaining the existing policy at the lower rate of premium for an initial period of one year. An extension of this period may be granted on application to the Executive of the Central Council.
 - (b) If the premium on the existing policy is more than £22 per annum the nurse has the option of maintaining the existing policy at the higher rate of premium.

ABANDONMENT OF HOSPITAL OR NURSING SERVICE AND SURRENDER OF POLICIES.

The Policies of Officers are not surrendered unless they definitely abandon Hospital Service as defined in the Scheme, and the Policies of Nurses are not surrendered unless they definitely abandon the Nursing Profession. All surrenders of policies are negotiated by the Secretary to the Central Council.

- (i) An Officer abandoning hospital service altogether within 10 years of joining the Scheme (or before pensionable age if that age is attainable within 10 years of joining) receives the *benefit of his or her own contributions only.
- (ii) An Officer abandoning hospital service altogether after 10 years receives the *benefit of the total contributions.
- (iii) A Nurse, admitted to the Scheme as a probationer, abandoning nursing service altogether within 5 years from the date of the completion of her training receives the *benefit of her own contributions only.
- (iv) A Nurse, admitted to the Scheme as a probationer, abandoning nursing service altogether after 5 years from the date of the completion of her training receives the *benefit of the total contributions.
- (v) A Nurse, admitted to the Scheme as a fully trained Nurse, abandoning nursing service altogether within 5 years from the date of joining the Scheme (or before pensionable age if that age is attainable within five years of joining) receives the *benefit of her own contributions only.
- (vi) A Nurse, admitted to the Scheme as a fully trained Nurse, abandoning nursing service altogether after 5 years from the date of joining the Scheme, receives the *benefit of the total contributions.

In the events mentioned in paragraphs (i), (iii) and (v) above, the *benefit of the Participating Institutions' contributions is returned to those Participating Institutions that have contributed in respect of the Member in proportion to their respective contributions.

DEATH IN SERVICE.

If an Officer or Nurse dies whilst in Hospital or Nursing Service respectively, the proceeds of his or her policy or policies and/or the total contributions in hand are payable to his or her legal personal representatives. In the case of Deferred Annuity Policies without return of premiums there will be no proceeds in the event of death.

If a Probationer dies before the completion of her training, only the contributions made by her, with interest, are payable to her legal personal representatives.

* The "benefit of contributions" means the surrender value of the policy. The surrender value of an Endowment Policy is proportionate to the number of years the policy has been in existence. It is less than the contributions (i.e. premiums) paid, particularly in the early years, because of the lump sum cover that has been given against the risk of death. The surrender value of a Deferred Annuity Policy with return of premiums is equal to the premiums (i.e., contributions) paid, together with compound interest thereon. In the case of a Deferred Annuity Policy without return of premiums, some surrender value may be given in cases other than death.

PROGRESS.

The Scheme has made rapid progress, as is shown by the following tables giving particulars of Institutions (principally Voluntary Hospitals) which had adopted the Scheme up to the 1st April, 1931.

The Scheme is under the management and control of an Executive appointed by and from the Central Council. The Central Council, which is Incorporated, consists of representatives of Institutions that have adopted the Scheme. Nurses and Hospital Officers also have representation on the Council and on the Executive.

The Registered Office of the Scheme is 1a, Henrietta Street, Cavendish Square, London, W. 1, and the Secretary will gladly supply further information.

THE OFFICIAL TRUSTEES OF CHARITABLE FUNDS.

Office: Ryder Street, St. James's, London, S.W. 1.

Official Trustees: H. D. S. LEAKE, J. E. C. ADAMS, A. E. McLAREN, O.B.E.

1. THE Official Trustees of Charitable Funds (who are Officers of the Charity Commissioners appointed by them from time to time with the approval of the Treasury) were constituted for the express purpose of holding Stocks, Shares, Securities and Moneys affected by Charitable Trusts. The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds were incorporated by the Charitable Trusts Act, 1925 (15 Geo. V, c. 27).

2. By the Charitable Trusts Acts, provision is made for the transfer or payment to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, of Stock or Money in trust for a Charity, by any Person, and especially by Trustees or other holders of Charitable Funds—by the Representatives of those Persons—and by Persons desirous of discharging any Legacy or Charge given or made to or for the benefit of any Charity.

3. A Payment or Transfer may be made to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds under these provisions, in pursuance of an Order of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for that purpose, which furnishes, by express Statutory provision, a complete Indemnity to all Companies and Persons making a Payment or Transfer or otherwise acting in obedience to it.

4. The Official Trustees have no power to interfere in the administration of the Income, or in the management of any Charity, and their duty is confined to remitting periodically the Dividends and Income of the Funds standing in their name, through a Banker or otherwise, to or according to the order of the administering Trustees of the Charity in Trust for which the Funds are held, for the purpose of being applied by them to the objects of the Trust.

5. The general advantages of vesting Charitable Funds in the Official Trustees are as follows:—

(a) The complete Statutory Indemnity afforded to the Trustees or Administrators of a Charity.

(b) The Dividends on all Securities held by the Official Trustees are remitted without deduction of Income Tax, from which the income of Charitable Funds is, by Law, exempt. The administering Trustees are thus spared the inconvenience of claiming from the Inland Revenue Department a return of the Tax deducted as in the case of Dividends on Securities which are not held by the Official Trustees.

(c) The necessity for periodical Transfers of Stock and other Securities upon appointments of new Trustees, at a constantly recurring cost to the Charity, is obviated.

(d) Charitable Funds held by Individual Trustees, in course of time frequently become vested, either in a single surviving Trustee, or in a personal Representative of a surviving Trustee, or in some other stranger to the Trust, or again, they remain either uninvested or invested in unauthorised Securities. All risk to the security or productiveness of Trust Funds which may thus arise is avoided where Funds are vested in the Official Trustees.

(e) Where, especially on the foundation of a Charity, Funds are in the hands of Persons, whether Executors or others, who are not constituted, or do not desire to become the administering Trustees of the Charity, they can, by vesting the Trust Fund in the Official Trustees, not merely relieve themselves of responsibility for its safe keeping but may ensure its due application in conformity with Trusts attaching to it, by applying for Trustees to be duly appointed by the Board.

6. It is obvious that, apart from personal considerations, considerable risk of loss, or of the occurrence of difficulty in tracing the existence of Trust Funds, arises, both where Stock or other Securities are held by a single Individual or by strangers to the Trust, and also, where sums of Cash are allowed to remain in private hands uninvested. In these cases the devolution of the Fund, on the death of the holder, must almost certainly take a course foreign to the Trust, and the property of the Charity may probably become mixed with, and undistinguishable from, private funds. In any of these cases it will be the duty of the Commissioners, in accordance with the invariable practice of Courts of Equity, to take steps to ensure the safe custody of the Fund by means of its Transfer or Payment to the Official Trustees.

7. The number of separate Charities of which accounts were rendered to the Charity Commissioners during the year 1929 was 48,274, while the like number for the year 1928 was 51,228. The total number of accounts received during 1929 was 63,296.

The total sum of stocks and investments held by the Official Trustees on 31st December, 1929, amounted to £74,526,975. This sum is irrespective of 224,572 American Dollars, 76,300 Rupees, 161,800 Francs, 6875 Gold Roubles, 6000 Kronen, 4000 Pesos, 3000 Reichsmarks, and £19,081 Annuities.

The Aggregate Income derived from the stocks, securities and annuities held by the Official Trustees amounted for the year 1929 to £2,589,782.

OPERATING THEATRE FITTINGS

(Patent No. 327563)

These fittings are expressly designed to give high intensity lighting in a restricted area, and to obviate any possibility of shadow, even when the head and shoulders of the surgeon are between the light and the working plane.

The central portion of the fitting prevents any undue heat falling on to the head of the surgeon when at work. These fittings are made in two sizes and are designed for use with standard OSRAM gasfilled Lamps.

THE LONDON FEVER HOSPITAL, ISLINGTON, N.1

Patron—HIS MAJESTY THE KING

President—The Right Hon. Lord EBURY, D.S.O., M.C.

Over 118,000 Patients have been received and treated since 1802. The Diseases admitted are Scarlet Fever, Diphtheria, Measles, and German Measles into the Wards, these and other Infectious Diseases into Private Rooms when accommodation can be made available:—

- (1) In the Wards for children under 13 years of age £2 2s. per week, Patients over that age £3 3s. per week.
- (2) In Private Rooms at fees from £7 7s. per week, payable weekly in advance.

Patients' payments in the General Wards only cover a part of their actual cost, the balance is defrayed from the funds of the Institution. This system encourages people who are able and willing to pay A PART AT LEAST of the cost of their illness to do so rather than cast themselves upon the rates or remain for treatment at home.

Annual Subscribers of a Guinea and upwards for more than one year are Governors, and Donors of 20 Guineas and upwards in one sum are Life Governors.

Domestic servants of Governors and certain employees of subscribing business houses, clubs, colleges, and hotels are promptly removed and treated free of charge in the Wards. Application to the Secretary with a medical certificate will ensure prompt admission. The application can be made personally or by letter, telegram, or telephone (Clerkenwell 9786).

Miss SMALLWOOD'S SOCIETY for the Assistance of Ladies in Reduced Circumstances

Under Royal Patronage

LEGACIES AND DONATIONS

URGENT APPEAL

This Society is solely engaged in tending for the needs of ladies who, through the ill-timed blows of "outrageous misfortune," are dependent on voluntary contributions and gifts.

The Society needs money for essential reasons—for rents—to buy coal—to relieve weak and frail ladies—to procure necessities for those capable of home employment—and to ensure an element of comfort for those who otherwise could not obtain it.

Will you help in this very human cause? Every donation, large or small, is very gratefully accepted.

If you cannot give a substantial amount now, will you kindly think of the Society when you make your will? Legacies help to lay a firm foundation, and an amount of £50, £100 or £500 would give very definite help in the future, and do much for the benefit of the Society.

A NOTABLE YEAR

The extent, the variety, and the romance of the work of the

is illustrated in its 131st Annual Report (1929-30)

The city missionary, provided by the Society with pointed messages for the careless; the hard-working minister or Sunday-school teacher, supplied with the most up-to-date helps in Bible study; the missionary on the banks of the Ganges, the Yangtse, or the Congo, labouring to give the native races the Gospel in their own tongues, and finding the R.T.S. ready to aid him in his task—all these give their glowing testimony. And who can measure the unknown but certain results of "preaching to a million for a ten-pound note" as in Japan; of The Pilgrim's Progress in 123 languages; of the tract or book printed in Lisbon or Madrid, and finding its way to the banks of the Amazon and over the Andes to the Pacific shore?

DIRECTORY OF INSTITUTIONS, ETC.

KING EDWARD'S HOSPITAL FUND FOR LONDON.

(FORMERLY THE PRINCE OF WALES' HOSPITAL FUND FOR LONDON.)

ESTABLISHED 1897.

Offices : 7, WALBROOK, E.C. 4.

Patron : H.M. THE KING.

President : H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Treasurer : E. R. PEACOCK, ESQ.

Bankers : THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

Hon. Secretaries : LORD SOMERLEYTON, LORD LUKE,
SIR LEONARD COHEN, SIR HAROLD WERNHER.

Secretary : H. R. MAYNARD.

Auditors : DELOITTE, PLENDER, GRIFFITHS & Co.

THE King's Fund was founded by King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, to secure additional support for the Voluntary Hospitals of London. In the thirty-three years since its establishment the Fund has distributed a total net amount of £6,488,040, while its invested funds now amount to £3,707,278.

OBJECTS.

King Edward's Fund is the central collecting Fund for the assistance of the London Hospitals. Through its Distribution Committee grants are made each year to eligible hospitals within a radius of eleven miles from St. Paul's.

Every hospital is visited by a medical and a lay Visitor whose reports are carefully considered before a grant is made, and all hospitals wishing to benefit must conform to the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts, a new and revised edition of which was published in January, 1926. The Fund also acts in many ways as a central co-ordinating body for the Hospitals of London. Enquiries are held from time to time into matters affecting the welfare of the hospitals and reports are published for their assistance and the removal of difficulties.

GRANTS IN 1929.

During the year the King's Fund distributed the sum of £250,000 from its ordinary sources, the same amount as in the previous year; while the Thank-Offering Fund for the King's Recovery, amounting to £115,000, was distributed in aid of schemes of extension and improvement. Special grants were also made in respect of the Pension Scheme for Nurses and Hospital Officers amounting to £13,734.

SPECIAL NEEDS.

It is particularly important at the present time that the financial position of the Voluntary Hospitals should be strengthened so that their influence on the new developments in the hospital service of the country should be as great as possible. The annual distribution by the King's Fund is an important factor in the financial stability of the hospitals of London. The Fund has exceptional facilities for making special distributions in aid of extensions or other special purposes, when funds available for such purposes are entrusted to it. Its power, as a central co-ordinating body, to act in the interests of all the hospitals may be of the greatest value in the immediate future to all who desire the maintenance of the voluntary element in the hospital service.

At least one in every four Londoners benefits by the Hospitals, yet not one in ten who could subscribe to their support does so, and this not from want of thought or heart, but chiefly from want of opportunity.

Not only do Londoners benefit by the London hospitals; statistics show that about 25 per cent. of the patients seeking relief from them reside outside the Metropolitan area.

The League of Mercy provides the opportunity for helping by the division of London and the surrounding counties into Districts, over each of which is a President, a Lady President, Vice-Presidents and Lady Vice-Presidents, appointed by the Grand President and Lady Grand President. The Presidents and Lady Presidents find and appoint the Vice-Presidents and Lady Vice-Presidents, who in their turn find and appoint the Members, whose duty it is to enrol Associates, that is, subscribers of at least one shilling each. All these Presidents, Lady Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Lady Vice-Presidents and Members are giving their time and services without any reward except the consciousness that they are helping a good cause.

Honorary Members subscribe One Guinea per annum, but render no personal service as the Members do.

£467,034 has already been contributed to the London Hospitals in the thirty-second year of the League of Mercy's existence, and, in addition to this, grants have been made, with the sanction of The Grand President, to many local county hospitals, after inspection, amounting to £130,741, making a total distribution of £597,775.

In the year 1930 the sum of £17,000 was transferred to the King's Fund, for distribution among London Hospitals; while the Grants to County Hospitals (including hospitals in Guernsey) amounted to £13,336, as against £8,474 in 1929. Of the 186 Extra-Metropolitan Hospitals recommended by the Presidents for consideration in 1930, 174 were awarded grants. The total Income for that year amounted to £32,874.

PARTICIPATING INSTITUTIONS.

Those Hospitals and Dispensaries only which are managed by a Committee duly constituted and which produce their printed Reports with Income and Expenditure Accounts and Balance Sheets duly audited for the last three years by a Public Accountant, in accordance with the Revised Uniform System of Accounts, shall be allowed to participate in the Fund, and no Institution, the benefits of which can only be gained through election by the subscribers, shall so participate.

RESULTS FOR 1929.

The total collection for the year 1929 amounted to £85,200, showing a decrease of £214 on the sum received in 1928. In 1929 the collections from 2118 congregations totalled £35,417, while in 1928, 2120 congregations contributed £35,090. The working expenses for 1929 were 4.285 per cent. of the gross receipts, as compared with 4.221 in 1928. The sum of £81,461 was distributed among the various hospitals and institutions, including grants amounting to £3512 for Surgical Appliances. METHOD OF ADMISSION.

Admission to a Provincial Infectious Diseases Hospital can be obtained most readily by communicating with the Medical Officer of Health, whose office is sure to be known locally. As regards cost of maintenance, Section 132 of the Public Health Act, 1875, empowers the local sanitary authorities to recover it from the patients; but usually, at all events when the patients are very poor, this power is not exercised, and the cost is thrown on the rates. Arrangements can generally be made at the larger institutions for special accommodation at a higher rate of payment, a system which it is desirable to make universal.

SCHOOLS FOR THE INSTRUCTION OF THE DEAF AND PARTIALLY DEAF.

No fee is charged for education, but parents are required to contribute according to their means towards the cost of maintenance of cases taken into residence. The children in the Schools for the Deaf are mostly instructed on the oral system, and are first taught to articulate and speak, and then, as far as possible, are taught reading, writing, arithmetic, and geography. Instruction in cookery, kindergarten, and drawing is also given where practicable. In the residential schools instruction is given in woodwork, tailoring, dressmaking, bootmaking, bread making, french polishing, housewifery, and laundry work. The children in the Schools for the Partially Deaf receive instruction in the subjects which form the curriculum in the ordinary Elementary Schools, with the addition of "lip-reading" and "correction in speech," the two subjects which these children specially require. The average number of children on the roll of the Schools for the Deaf and Partially Deaf for year ended March 1930, was 735; average attendance, 644.
